SAL Nat'l Commander Visits Morrisette Post

By SCOTT JACKSON

One quarter of Quincy's registered voters are expected to cast ballots in the upcoming state primary election, which features contested races on both the Democratic and Republican ballots.

Voters will have the opportunity to vote early – in-person and by mail – in lead up to the primary. On the day of the primary, Tuesday, Sept. 6, polls will be open from 7 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Early voting by mail is already ongoing ahead of the election. As of Aug. 10, approximately 6,000 ballots had been mailed to voters who requested one, City Clerk Nicole Crispo said. That means roughly 9.1 percent of the city's 65,445 registered voters as of then – the deadline to register to vote is Saturday, Aug. 27 – had been sent ballots. That figure does not include requests for absentee ballots; Crispo said the number of absentee ballots requested has waned with the availability of early mail-in voting.

Based in part on the number of voters who have sought to vote by mail, as well as the ability to vote early by mail and in-person, Crispo is predicting a turnout of 25 percent in the primary.

"Based upon the early

A complete listing of Quincy's streets showing which addresses have been assigned to which of the city's wards and precincts appears in this week's edition of The Quincy Sun.

The street listing begins on Page 21.

The city's ward and precinct lines were redrawn following the 2020 federal census. The street listing allows residents to look up their address and see which ward and precinct they reside within.

"You can look up your specific street number and then you'll find out whether you stayed the same or whether you changed your ward or precinct," City Clerk Nicole Crispo said.

The street listing includes all addresses, not just those that changed as a result of the census.

"It's timely that we put out the whole list so that everyone can just verify," which ward and precinct they live in, Crispo said. "With all the changes, I want to be sure that everybody knows where they vote."

Approximately 12,000 registered voters will find themselves in a new ward or precinct, Crispo said. Households who have moved between wards or precincts will receive a notice in the mail as soon as this week, she stated.

Bill Supporting Vets, Military Families Signed Into Law

The Massachusetts Legislature has passed comprehensive legislation, An Act relative to military spouse-licensure portability, education and enrollment of dependents, addressing the Commonwealth's most immediate needs in the veteran community and making necessary updates to service member quality-of-life issues and acknowledgements of our military branches and individual service, including supporting military families who relocate to the Commonwealth with expedited licensure and school enrollment, creating education awareness programs, and establishing the Massachusetts Medal of Fidelity.

The bill was signed into law by Gov. Charlie Baker Aug. 5.

"Our veterans are the best and bravest among us, and while we can never truly repay them for their service to this country, veterans are more than deserving of continued support from those in public office," said House Speaker Ronald J. Mariano (D-Quincy). "I'm proud that today, with the best interest of our veterans in mind, the Legislature passed legislation that responds to immediate needs in the veteran community such as access to school enrolment for military families that have recently relocated to Massachusetts, and that establishes health education awareness programs and additional acknowledgements of military service, among other provisions. I want to thank Chair McMurtry and each member of the conference committee, my colleagues in the House, as well as Senate President Spilka and our partners in the Senate for prioritizing the well-being of our veterans, and for the hard work required to get this done."

"Our servicemen and women along with their families have made great sacrifices to ensure we enjoy the freedoms we take for granted," said Rep. Tackey Chan (D-Quincy). "One important aspect of this bill is it establishes a streamlined process for military families relocated to Massachusetts and ensures access to educational and workforce opportunities."

"We all owe a debt to veterans and their families for the sacrifices that they have made to defend our freedoms and liberties, and those of us who live

Quincy Youth Enjoy Day Trip To Spectacle Island

More than 220 kids from five organizations in five communities including 40 kids from Idiil Learning Center in Quincy recently set sail to Spectacle Island as part of Save the Harbor/Save the Bay's free All Access Boston Harbor program.

"These free trips to the Boston Harbor Islands are some of the best parts of the summer," said Kristen Barry, deputy executive director at Save the Harbor/Save the Bay. "No matter what community they come from or what group they are a part of, they always come back to shore with new experiences and new perspectives."

The groups gathered in the Leader Bank Pavilion in Boston's Seaport where Save the Harbor's Historian, David Coffin, told kids about the island's history. Coffin spoke about how Spectacle Island was a dumping ground for Boston's trash, burning continuously for more than a decade. Today the island is now the most popular destination in the Boston Harbor Islands National & State Park.

"This is one my favorite stories," said Coffin to the gathered groups. "You can be a flaming pile of trash for ten years and you can still turn your life around."

This summer Save the Harbor's youth and beach program staff of 40 will run two free cruises a week to the Boston Harbor Islands, as well as scores of free events and programs on Boston's waterfront and on the region's public beaches from Nahant to Nantasket.

On most trips to Spectacle, the youth break into groups to explore the beach and hike to the top of the Democratic City Committee Hosting Virtual Voting Rights Social Aug. 18

The Quincy Democratic City Committee (QDCC) will host a "Quincy Dems after Dark" event on Thursday, Aug. 18th at 7 p.m. over Zoom.

The social's theme is "voting rights" and will feature two speakers: Bob LaRocca, founder and president of LaRocca Strategies and executive director of Voter Protection Corps, and Doug Linder, former director of National Voter Protection Corps and current advocacy director for Judiciary and Democracy at the League of Conservation Voters.

"I am thrilled to have the opportunity to talk about voting rights with my fellow Quincy Dems. The right to vote is sacred and with another election coming up, it's critical that we work to make voting more accessible for all," LaRocca said.

QDCC began "Quincy Dems after Dark" with the intent to connect local Democrats and educate members on various political and societal topics. To learn more about QDCC or future "Quincy Dems after Dark" events, email Anna Duffy, QDCC's Publicity officer (aduffy95@gmail.com).

Access the equity in your home or free up cash monthly Here's how...

Maybe you'd love to access the equity in your home but you're nervous about taking out an adjustable home equity line with interest rates rising. Or maybe you went with a shorter term and that monthly payment has become a burden. This is something that could work for you - refinance into a new 30-year mortgage. With 30-year rates still historically low, it's definitely a home equity loan/line alternative. And also a way to free up cash monthly and make your life easier. Would a new 30-year loan be right for you? It's easy to find out. Apply online or call Angela Blanchard at 617-376-3500.

THE HISTORY CHANNEL

• On Sept. 3, 1783, the American Revolution comes to an end when representatives of the United States, Great Britain, Spain and France sign the Treaty of Paris. The signing signified America's status as a free nation, as Britain formally recognized the independence of its 13 former American colonies.

• On Sept. 1, 1850, circus entrepreneur P.T. Barnum brings to the United States Jenny Lind ("The Swedish Nightingale"), the greatest opera performer in the world at the time. Her tour is believed to have netted Barnum close to a half-million dollars.

• On Aug. 31, 1888, Mary Ann Nichols, the first victim of London serial killer "Jack the Ripper," is found murdered in Whitechapel's Buck's Row. On Nov. 7, after a month of silence, Jack took his fifth and last victim, Mary Kelly. In 1892, with no leads found and no more murders recorded, the Jack the Ripper file was closed.

• On Aug. 29, 1945, President Harry S. Truman authorizes the Navy to seize control of and operate petroleum refineries to counteract strikes by oil workers. Oil, gas and chemical workers had worked hard during the war to meet production demands and now wanted to return to a 40-hour work week. They resented the amount of money oil industry CEOs were making off of their labor while they simultaneously threatened to lower workers' wages after the war.

• On Sept. 4, 1957, Ford Motor Company unveils the Edsel. One reporter called it "an Oldsmobile sucking a lemon." In addition, at highway speeds, the famous hood ornament had a tendency to fly off and into the windshield.

• On Sept. 2, 1987, the trial of Mathias Rust, the 19-year-old pilot who flew his Cessna plane into Red Square in May 1987, begins in Moscow. Rust had become an international celebrity after he flew completely undetected through Soviet airspace. Rust claimed that he was merely trying to promote world peace. (c) 2022 Hearst Communications, Inc. All Rights Reserved

The Answer Is Not Medically Assisted Suicide – Disabled People Demand Full Civil, Human Rights

By JOHN KELLY

OP ED

Thirty-eight years ago an accident left me paralyzed below my shoulders. My father was brokenhearted and wished I had died instead. His hopelessness about my life, however painful for me, was but a simple reflection of widespread prejudice against disabled people.

A few years after my injury, Jack Kevorkian became a sort of folk hero for "helping" terminally ill people die through his "self deliverance" machine. It later came out that more than two thirds of his clients were not terminal at all, but disabled people, primarily women, in psychological distress.

Over time, as medicine has focused increasingly on patient "quality-of-life" as a barometer of life-worthiness, death has been recharacterized as a benefit to an ill or disabled individual. Most physicians (82%, a Harvard study recently found) view our "quality-of-life" as worse. Disability advocates have raised concerns about the fate of disabled people like Oregonian Sarah McSweeney and Texan Michael Hickson. Both wanted to live, both were loved by family and caregivers, but they died after hospital personnel denied them treatment based on their disabilities.

Over the last 25 years first Oregon, then additional states and Washington D.C. established assisted suicide programs for people expected to die within six months. Proponent rhetoric has focused on compassion for people's physical pain and suffering, and the hope of a choiceful, peaceful end.

The reality, as shown by the top five reported "end of life concerns" in Oregon, hinge not on pain, but on people's "existential distress," as one study termed it, in reaction to the disabling features of their illness: depending on and feeling like a burden on other people, losing abilities, losing the respect of self and others ("loss of dignity"), and shame over incontinence.

Prominent bioethicist Thaddeus Pope concedes that "Everybody who's using medical aid in dying is disabled. And probably you could go to the next step and say the reason they want medical aid in dying is because of their disability." To Pope, any disability a patient finds "personally intolerable" is sufficient reason to assist their suicide.

In Massachusetts, assisted suicide bills have been put forward every session for the last 20 years. Proponents proclaim strong public support for the measure, but that support is shallow. In the weeks leading up to the 2012 ballot question on assisted suicide, polls showed 68% support. The ballot question lost, 51%-49%. Now supporters say that 77% of Massachusetts residents support the bill, based on a poll question seeking compassion for terminally ill people "to end their suffering," with its implication of physical pain.

State House Speaker Ron Mariano declared "We have a very divided House of Representatives. There's not a 77 percent affirmative vote in the House right now."

With the end of the legislative session on July 31, the bill died.

Disability rights advocates appreciate the willingness of many legislators to take our concerns seriously. We worry, with death reframed as a benefit for severely disabled people, that increased legalization will bring expansion of eligibility. Pope points out that the US is unique in the world for limiting assisted suicide to terminal people, and that every other jurisdiction, including Canada, offers euthanasia on demand to non-dying disabled people. He predicts that non-terminal disabled people will become eligible in the US. In Canada, disabled people have been euthanized because they were denied needed care or couldn't find safe housing for multiple chemical sensitivities.

There are unsolvable problems with all assisted suicide laws. First, real choice resides with insurers, whose bottom line favors delay or denial of treatment. Dr. Brian Callister reported trying to refer two patients for life-saving but expensive procedures in Oregon and California, only to hear that the insurers limited coverage to hospice and assisted suicide.

Second, when people feel they have lost their dignity and feel like a burden on others, they are vulnerable to pressure and outright coercion to sacrifice themselves for others benefit. Abuse yearly affects one in 10 elders, exacerbated by COVID-19 restrictions. A self-interested heir can push a patient to make the request, serve as a witness along with a "friend," pick up the drugs and, because no disinterested witness is required at the death, administer the drugs themselves. The law grants immunity to anyone who assists in the death who say they acted "in good faith." Deadly abuse goes unpunished and unnoticed.

Third, terminal prognoses are notoriously inaccurate. NPR reported a few years ago that nearly one in five people who enter hospice survive the six-month benefit. Oregon revealed last year that just 4% of patients live past six months, meaning that the difference between 4% and almost 20% represents the body count of people who weren't really dying. People who oppose capital punishment because of the inevitability of executing an innocent person should take note.

The 2012 Massachusetts ballot results and the patient demographics in states like California show there is a social class, race, and ethnicity component in the use of and support for assisted suicide. A 2013 Pew Research Center study showed that Blacks oppose assisted suicide by 65%-29%, and Latinos by 65%-32%. Majority Latino Lawrence voted 69% against the 2012 question, while white working class towns like Taunton and Gardner also opposed. Wealthier, whiter Massachusetts towns voted heavily in favor. In California, 94% of reported assisted suicides have been by non-Hispanic whites, more than twice the group's share of the state population. Almost no black people have used the program.

The answer is to address people's real needs. That means a fully funded Medicare home care benefit to reduce burden and keep people out of nursing homes. It means more and better palliative care. And for people whose discomfort cannot be otherwise relieved, there is the option of palliative sedation, whereby a person is sedated to the point of comfort while the dying process takes place.

The answer is not medically assisted suicide. We disabled people demand full civil and human rights, equal protection under the law, equal suicide prevention, and more respect throughout society.

John B. Kelly is the director of Second Thoughts MA.

Scenes From Yesterday

THIS IS A 1910 real photo postcard published by George W. Peterson of Wollaston, proprietor of this grocery and provisions store on Quincy Shore Drive. Peterson is likely the man with the necktie and white apron in the center of the group posing for this picture. He operated this store only in the summer season, but he also had a year-round store on Hancock Street in Wollaston Center. The building shown here was at the foot of Beach Street and it was built on pilings just a few years before the boulevard was built. It sat on the south edge of Sachem Brook, which at the time was an estuary here that ran almost up to Billings Road. The brook was just to the right of the building. After prohibition ended, Mitchell's building was used as part of Elsie's Cafe on the corner of Beach Street at 685 Quincy Shore Dr. Today, this site is a parking lot for the Ocean Cove Condominiums on the corner of Vassall Street. The brook now runs through a pipe underground.

Welcome To Squantum

I drive my 3-year old daughter from our home in West Quincy up to a school playground in Squantum, because it's one of the few parks in the city that's remotely shaded and also not on a main road.

As I enter Squantum, I see the large and beautiful "Welcome to Squantum" sign, but lately, I can't help but be reminded of the Long Island bridge fracas. I am unsurprised that our mayor went for the one-scoop-of-vanilla excuse of "environmental concerns" as the reason for not wanting the bridge to be built. I'm sure it has nothing to do with "unsavory" people even daring to pass through the neighborhood to the mainland. It almost certainly has nothing to do with what's always been the case for Squantum, the "Jewel of the City" and how it relates to Quincy: protecting generationally-wealthy residents and their wishes.

I'm largely sure that the mayor would have no problem running the Long Island bridge through West Quincy, as everything else is already run through here, not the least of which is the Southeast Expressway, and the accompanying ways to get on and off of it. It's true that we in general give almost nothing to the mayor's campaign fund, but that shouldn't mean we have broken, impassable sidewalks on Copeland Street while city employees are removing gum from the hand-laid bricks on the Hancock-Adams Common.

As I drove back home, constantly fighting West Quincy's commuter traffic just to get to my humble abode, as I do every day, I must've been so distracted that I missed all of the beautiful "Welcome to West Quincy" signs.

Applauds Passage Of Climate Bill

On Aug. 11, in the midst of a severe drought and on the heels of a pair of record heat waves, Gov. Baker signed a law that will help slow our fast march towards a world that no longer supports human life. As reported in the Sun, the new law will promote faster growth of offshore wind, a whole new industry that will bring many thousands of jobs to the Commonwealth while reducing air pollution and the greenhouse gases that helped bring this summer's miserable weather.

Other provisions in the law create funds to accelerate the adoption of electric vehicles, allow Massachusetts to collaborate with neighboring states in bidding for renewable energy, and greenlight a pilot program whereby ten municipalities will ban gas and oil heat for new construction.

Quincy can take pride in our statehouse delegation's unanimous support for the legislation. In particular, the law's passage required strong support from the house speaker, Quincy's Ronald Mariano. In addition, Quincy's Rep. Tackey Chan served on the conference committee that combined two very different versions of the bill, one from the House and one from the Senate, into a final bill that retained the best qualities of both versions.

Weather such as we've suffered this summer will surely be with us for years to come, but the new law and others like it, including the one that just made it through Congress, will decrease the chance that our climate crisis turns into a full-blown climate disaster.

6 Mayoral Candidates File Papers

If you think the coming mayoralty contest is simply a race between political rivals Mayor Joseph J. LaRaia and Council President Arthur H. Tobin you've got a little more thinking to do.

No less than six candidates for highest office in Quincy filed nomination papers before the Tuesday deadline.

In addition to LaRaia and Tobin, the mayoral candidates include attorneys George M. Tull and Thomas M. Barron, real estate man Leo J. Hannon and Thomas P. McHugh.

Councillors at-Large Paul Harold and John Quinn were seeking re-election, but the Tobin vacancy has attracted six more candidates including Ward Six Councillor Dennis Harrington, School Committee member Frank McCauley, and former representative Joseph Brett.

The others are Sabina Kavanagh Stenberg, retired State Police Captain Michael E. Faherty and student Carl A. Awed, Jr.

TOBIN CALLS FOR WEEKLY REPORT ON NQHS CONSTRCUTION PROGRESS

Council President Arthur H. Tobin has asked School Supt. Dr. Lawrence P. Creedon and Public Works Commissioner Paul N. Anderson to file a weekly, "List of accomplishments, progress and work schedule made toward the opening of North Quincy High School on time."

Tobin noted that the addition to the high school is "65 days behind schedule with nothing being shown at this point except hollow promises."

Commissioner Anderson flatly promised that students would be in the addition by Sept. 1, 1978.

Yogurt Lemon Cream Pudding

By MARIE

Through the years I have made dozens of puddings mostly vanilla and chocolate but I recently found a recipe for a very light summery pudding. I don't usually use condensed milk, but the condensed milk worked very well with this recipe.

14 ounces of condensed milk, sweetened

1 cup of plain yogurt. (I used Greek yogurt)

Zest of 2 lemons, plus the juice of the two lemons

2 egg whites

1 tablespoon of sugar

In a bowl, put condensed milk and gradually beat in the yogurt, grated lemon and the juice.

Stir thoroughly until well blended.

In another bowl whisk the egg whites until stiff and gradually fold in the sugar.

Continue whisking until the mixture stands into firm peaks.

Fold the egg whites gently into the condensed milk mixture and spoon the pudding into 4 dishes and chill for 4 hours.

Five Ingredients No Bake Blueberry Energy Balls

By SUZIE

Who wants to bake when there's a heat wave? Not many!

This is a wonderful and simple recipe to dampen that "sweet tooth" while fueling your body with antioxidants, fiber, and protein, and you don't need an oven.

This recipe uses no refined sugar and relies on the dates for sweetness.

Dates contain fiber and antioxidants and make a fantastic sweetener. (I use date syrup in my coffee.)

Highly nutritious Chia seeds also contain fiber but also protein, omega 3 fatty acids, and a variety of micronutrients. Then of course the blueberries are a superstar in the fruit kingdom, and the oats also contain fiber as well as complex carbs, protein, and antioxidants. Try them! I think you will love them as I do.

1/2 cup frozen organic blueberries (thawed)

6 dates (pitted; Medjool dates preferred)

1/2 cup gluten-free oats (I use "One Degree" brand)

1/4 cup almond butter

1/4 cup chia seeds

Place all ingredients in food processor and pulse until all combined.

Roll into balls with wet hands, place on parchment paper and refrigerate at least an hour.

Enjoy!

Congregation Beth Shalom Of Blue Hills Open House, Ice Cream Social Aug. 29

Congregation Beth Shalom of the Blue Hills is having an Open House and Ice Cream Social on Monday, Aug. 29, from 6:15 to 7:30 p.m.

Jewish and Interfaith families are invited to meet Cantor Lisa Kipen-Hershenson, director of the Rabbi Jerome Weistrop Religious School, Rabbi Alfred Benjamin, religious school teachers, families and members of the congregation.

Prospective new members who attend will receive complimentary attendance at all Children/Youth/Family Services. Only complimentary tickets for either Rosh HaShanah or Yom Kippur will be offered for attendance at Congregational Services.

Movie Review: 'Bullet Train'

By BOB GARVER

I love movies like "Bullet Train." Get a bunch of thieves, assassins, and criminal types in compact space and watch them careen and bounce off each other like bumper cars for two hours.

It helps that I also like trains. Taking a train out of Penn Station in New York City is my favorite way to travel. And the Shinkansen "bullet" train in Japan, with a maximum operating speed of 320 km/hr., is definitely on my bucket list. If I can ever work the bullet train, a pro wrestling show at Budokan Hall, and a teriyaki burger from a Japanese McDonald's into a single day… that'll be a good day. I didn't have quite that good a day putting in eight hours at work and then going to see "Bullet Train," but it was fine.

Brad Pitt stars as Ladybug, a former assassin now trying to make it as a non-violent criminal. He's tasked with stealing a briefcase from a luggage compartment, but of course it can't be that simple. Ladybug has both the best and worst luck of any person on the planet. For example, he easily finds the unattended briefcase among a massive stack of luggage. But at the very next stop, he's accosted by The Wolf (Bad Bunny), a former high-ranking cartel member who blames Ladybug for the death of his wife. Ladybug faces difficulties at every subsequent stop, never able to complete the task of simply exiting the train.

The briefcase initially belongs to bickering British twins Lemon (Bryan Tyree Henry) and Tangerine (Aaron Taylor-Johnson). Lemon is obsessed with Thomas the Tank Engine, much to the frustration of Tangerine, who thinks it's bad for their image that his brother cares so deeply about a kids' show. The two are tasked with delivering both the briefcase and The Son (Logan Lerman) to Russian mob boss White Death. They lose the briefcase before the first stop, and The Son not long after. They're going to have to con their way out of trouble, which Lemon thinks he can do by identifying the Diesel, or most evil person on the train.

Also in the mix are The Prince (Joey King) and The Father (Andrew Koji), who is no relation to The Prince or The Son, though he is the son of former Yakuza The Elder (Hiroyuki Sanada). Although she looks young and innocent, The Prince is secretly conniving and dangerous. She has an assassin standing over The Father's bedridden son (again, not to be confused with The Son), and will effectively give the order to kill if she doesn't check in with her man every ten minutes. To save his son, The Father will have to help rig the briefcase with explosives and booby-trap a gun so that it backfires on White Death when he inevitably fires it. But to rig the briefcase, he and The Prince first have to steal it from Ladybug, who stole it from Lemon and Tangerine, who want it back. Oh, and there's an incredibly poisonous snake loose on the train. Repeat: there's a Snake on the Train.

The fight scenes, snappy dialogue, and laughs are plentiful in "Bullet Train," which aspires to be like something out of Guy Ritchie or Quentin Tarantino. It's on track (pun intended) to be on the level of those films until the third act, where it runs out of steam (pun less intended) with a series of long exposition dumps that will make you wish the film would hurry up and get to the end of the line (pun definitely intended) already. Still this is a fun movie that should satisfy both action and comedy fans. I guess what I'm saying is a mildly enthusiastic "All Aboard!"

Grade: B-

"Bullet Train" is rated R for strong and bloody violence, pervasive language, and brief sexuality. Its running time is 126 minutes.

Kayla Higgins, Julia Tomer Running Falmouth Road Race For Flutie Foundation

Kayla Higgins and Julia Tomer of Quincy will be running in the Falmouth Road Race Sunday, Aug. 21 as a member of Dougie's Team supporting the Doug Flutie Jr., Foundation for Autism.

Kayla and Julia will be running to raise money to help the Flutie Foundation continue to fund programs that help people and families affected by autism live life to the fullest. The Flutie Foundation provides direct financial support to families to relieve the financial burden of caring for a loved one with autism, and collaborative grant making to autism-serving organizations. The foundation also works towards creating opportunities for people with autism to lead lives where they are included, respected and engaged in their communities.

Working in the special education field since 2018, Kayla is currently a board-certified behavior analyst for high school students with autism. "I have run for Team Dougie for the past three Falmouth Road Races, as well as the Flutie 5K for Autism," says Kayla. "I'm looking forward to this year's race!"

As a runner growing up outside of Boston, running the Boston Marathon has been a lifelong dream for Julia. To start, Julia will be running in this year's Falmouth Road Race. "I am excited to run for the Flutie Foundation because I have dedicated my adult life to working and learning about individuals with autism and other developmental disabilities," she explains. "To be able to fundraise and run in honor of this foundation is something I have wanted to do for years!"

In addition to fundraising for the cause, Julia currently works as a Pediatric Registered Nurse at Boston Children's Hospital Developmental Medicine Department where she passionately provides care and education to individuals with autism.

Social Security Matters

Wife's Benefits While I'm Living And As My Widow?

By RUSSELL GLOOR
National Social Security Advisor
at the AMAC Foundation, The Non-Profit Arm of the Association of Mature American Citizens

Dear Rusty: I will be 70 in January and my wife will be 65 in February, at which time we will both go on Medicare. I am currently working, and my approximate Social Security benefit will be around $2,900. My wife was a stay-at-home mom and, therefore, has minimal Social Security benefits on her own. At 65 she is eligible for $870 and at full retirement age will qualify for $990. A few questions: if she starts to draw benefits at 65, what would be her total spousal benefit? If she waited until her full retirement age, what would the amount be? Of greater concern, what would be her survivor benefit given the same criteria as mentioned above. Signed: Planning Ahead

Dear Planning Ahead: Based on the Social Security amounts in your email, your wife is eligible for a spousal benefit while you are both living. Her spouse benefit when she claims will consist of her own Social Security retirement benefit plus a spousal boost to bring her payment to her spousal entitlement. Spouse benefits are computed using full retirement age (FRA) benefit amounts, so if your age 70 benefit is "around $2,900" then your FRA (age 66) benefit amount (known as your "primary insurance amount") should be around $2,225. Your wife's base spousal boost would be the difference between her FRA amount and 50% of your FRA amount, so her total benefit, if taken at her full retirement age, would be about $1,112 (her $990 plus a $122 spousal boost). But taken at age 65, both her own benefit and her spousal boost would be reduced. At age 65 your wife's total benefit would be around $963 (her own $870 plus a reduced spousal boost of about $93).

Regarding your wife's survivor benefit as your widow, if she has reached her full retirement age (66 years and 8 months), at your death she would get the same amount you were getting when you died – the $2,900 you will get by claiming at age 70. Your wife's survivor benefit as your widow will replace the smaller spousal amount she was receiving while you were both living. Since your wife will be already collecting a spousal benefit from you, if she has reached her FRA when you pass your wife will be automatically awarded her survivor benefit at that time. If she hasn't yet reached her FRA when you pass, the spousal portion of her benefit will stop but she can request a reduced survivor benefit early. In that case her early survivor benefit will be actuarially reduced by .396% for each month before her FRA it is claimed. If you were to die in the month your wife turns 65, her early survivor benefit would be about $2,668.

One final thought about Medicare: if you continue to work and have "creditable" healthcare coverage from your employer, you can defer enrolling in Medicare Part B (coverage for outpatient services), thus avoiding the Part B premium until you stop working. If your wife is covered under your "creditable" employer healthcare plan, she can also defer enrolling in Medicare Part B until that coverage ends ("creditable" is a group plan with at least 20 participants). However, enrolling in Medicare Part A (coverage for inpatient hospitalization services), for which there is no premium, is mandatory to collect Social Security after age 65.

A Job Well Done

By QUINCY POLICE SGT. KARYN BARKAS
Public Information Officer
Quincy Police Department

On Thursday, Aug. 4, members of the Quincy Police Drug Control Unit (DCU) were working in plainclothes and operating unmarked nontraditional police vehicles. They were conducting surveillance in the West Quincy area of the city.

At approximately 11:30 a.m., detectives were in the area of Nelson Street and Arthur Street when they observed what they believed to be a drug transaction that occurred inside a Honda CRV. A resident of a home on Nelson Street had exited the home, entered the CRV, and exited the vehicle within 30 seconds.

Detectives queried the registration of the Honda and immediately recognized the name of the registered owner from a recent drug arrest in May 2022. Detectives also noticed that the Honda CRV was just registered on June 1, 2022 and had already been queried approximately 10 times by eight different police departments, including two queries by members of the Braintree Police DCU. The query also showed that the registered owner's license to drive was suspended.

Based on observations, along with the above information, the decision was made for some members of the DCU to make contact with the female while other detectives kept surveillance of the Honda CRV that was travelling up Nelson Street toward Suomi Road.

Detectives spoke with the female who turned over one plastic bag of a white powder substance, believed to be cocaine. She admitted to purchasing the narcotics from the operator of the Honda CRV. Detectives relayed this information to other members of the DCU who were still surveilling the Honda CRV. Detectives, with the assistance of Boston Police, stopped the vehicle at the red light on Granite Avenue at Milton Street.

K-9 Officer Rolfsen removed the operator of the vehicle and placed him into custody. The operator spoke no English and was identified by a Dominican identification card that was located in his wallet. Detectives also located $1,111 in his pocket.

Inside of the Honda CRV, detectives located eight clear, knotted plastic bags of powder. Three of the eight plastic bags contained a white rock-like powder and five of the plastic bags contained a tan powder. Detectives also located a clear plastic sandwich bag that contained an additional thirty-two plastic bags. The substances in these bags were similar to those which had already been located.

The Honda CRV was towed to the Quincy Police Station to be searched. Officer Rolfsen found three more plastic bags of powder underneath the driver's floorboard. Field tests showed that all substances were narcotics (cocaine, crack cocaine, and Fentanyl). The drugs were then packaged and logged into evidence to be forwarded to the MA State Lab for testing and certification.

The US currency and an iPhone were seized pending civil forfeiture. Detectives believed this money to be proceeds from illegal drug transactions and the cell phone was used to facilitate such sales.

The 33-year-old male, who claimed to be homeless, was arrested and transported to the Quincy Police Station where he was booked on the following charges: trafficking fentanyl, distribution Class B (cocaine), possession with intent to distribute Class B (cocaine), and unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle. Great work!

Clean Energy Legislation Includes Four Amendments Filed By Sen. John Keenan

Massachusetts has passed comprehensive climate legislation to reach net-zero greenhouse gas emissions by 2050. The bill, approved by the House and Senate leadership on July 21 and signed by Gov. Charlie Baker on Aug. 11, includes four amendments filed by Sen. John Keenan making electric vehicle use in Massachusetts more accessible for Massachusetts drivers.

An Act driving clean energy and offshore wind includes a wide slate of policy changes and new programs intended to cut carbon emissions in Massachusetts through greener transportation, energy-efficient buildings, and clean power generation.

"We have reached a point where we must choose between a changing climate or a changing society. Thanks to this legislation, we can change for the better," said Sen. Keenan. "For many of us, our involvement in a greener future starts in the driveway. That is why I worked to ensure this legislation makes electric vehicles a realistic and accessible option for Massachusetts drivers."

The first of Sen. Keenan's two EV-specific amendments stipulates that the Commonwealth shall install 11 charging stations at transportation hubs including commuter rail, subway, and ferry stations across Massachusetts. The second is intended to prevent abuse of the Commonwealth's new EV rebate program by prohibiting buyers of used EVs from getting rebates unless the original owner kept the car for at least a year.

Sen. Keenan also filed an amendment, which is included in the new law, making municipally-owned higher education institutions eligible for grants through the Commonwealth's Green Jobs Initiative, which funds public college and universities looking to facilitate clean energy workforce development efforts. The inclusion of this provision will particularly benefit Quincy College students, who otherwise could not have participated in the initiative.

The fourth amendment filed by Sen. Keenan included in the final bill that the Senate adopted adds a representative with public-health expertise to the Commonwealth's Stakeholder Working Group to Align Gas System Enhancement Plans.

"Overall, this new law changes the sources of our energy and the way in which we will use that energy, both resulting in timely and significant positive impacts on our climate, while also making Massachusetts a leader in the business of clean energy," said Sen. Keenan.

Offshore wind

To incentivize the development of the offshore wind industry in Massachusetts, this legislation establishes a Massachusetts Offshore Wind Industry Investment Program, administered by the Massachusetts Clean Energy Center (MassCEC), consisting of annual tax incentives, grants, loans, and other investments through the fund, and assistance from MassCEC in accessing other state or federal economic investment programs. The legislation also creates the Massachusetts Offshore Wind Industry Investment Trust Fund to promote the manufacture, fabrication, and work in Quincy especially appreciate the military given the proud legacy of service that those from our city have demonstrated throughout our nation's history," said Sen. John Keenan (D-Quincy). "I am pleased to join with my colleagues to support this legislation that will help ensure that this is not just a debt of gratitude but a real-world solution to help military families meet their most pressing concerns, and ease the way for those who move to Massachusetts to have their educational and professional needs addressed as efficiently as possible."

"This is a historic bill. This is most likely the most encompassing military and veterans bill passed in the Commonwealth in the last century," said Major General Gary W. Keefe, Adjutant General of the Massachusetts National Guard. "This bill recognizes both the sacrifice of our military service members, as well as veterans and their families, and it establishes programs that will recruit and retain service members, attract future military missions, and continue to provide for our growing veteran population. Our thanks to all the Massachusetts legislators in the House and the Senate, as well as the tenacity and leadership of the Joint Committee on Military and Veterans' Affairs who worked tirelessly to get this bill over the goal line. This bill will make it clear to every state in the republic that Massachusetts is unmatched in its care and support of its military members, veterans, and their families."

Highlights of the legislation include:

• Military spouse licensure portability: requires the Division of Occupational Licensure, the Department of Public Health, and Massachusetts Boards of Registration to accept a military spouse's application for licensure or notify them of what criteria they were not able to meet within 30 days of the application.

• Expedited military spouse teacher licenses: establishes a military spouse certificate to be issued by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education Commissioner to military spouse teachers that meet certain requirements.

• School enrollment for military children: allows military families to register and enroll in a school district when a service member first receives their relocation order, waiving the proof of residency requirement at the time of registration. This provision also allows military children who are transferring mid-semester to enroll in and attend one of the Commonwealth's virtual schools.

• Purple Star campus designation: establishes the Purple Star Campus Program, to be administered by the Department of Elementary and Secondary Education, to designate schools that demonstrate a commitment to students and families of service members.

• In-state tuition continuity for military-connected college students: ensures that a member of the military stationed in the Commonwealth, their spouse, or their children are deemed an in-state resident after their acceptance at one of the state's higher education institutions.

• Civilian licensure and certification information: directs the Commissioner of Veterans' Services to make information on civilian licensure and certification opportunities available to service members and veterans and provide information on military education and skills to relevant agencies.

Open Burn Pit Registry:

• Directs the Commissioner of the Department of Public Health (DPH), in consultation with the Commissioner of the Department of Veterans' Services and the Adjutant General of the National Guard, to develop educational materials and an informational pamphlet on the health impacts of open burn pits and other airborne hazards during overseas deployment and information on the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs' Airborne Hazards and Open Burn Pit Registry to be distributed to health care providers, veterans' service offices and organizations, and service members and veterans.

• Directs the Commissioner of the Department of Veterans' Services, in consultation with the Commissioner of DPH and the Adjutant General, to contact all members of the Armed Forces, National Guard and veterans to register for the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs' Airborne Hazards and Open Burn Pit Registry.

• Requires the Adjutant General to request that the periodic health assessment for National Guard members determine whether the member is eligible to participate in the U.S. Department of Veterans Affairs' Airborne Hazards and Open Burn Pit Registry and if eligible, the member register for the Registry.

• Massachusetts National Guard family education program: establishes a Massachusetts National Guard Family Education Program to allow National Guard members to transfer their unused education benefits under the National Guard Education Assistance Program to their dependents.

• Slot machines at veterans' organizations commission: establishes a commission to study and report on limited slot machine licenses for veteran organizations.

• Veteran Mentor Program: enables the UMass system, including UMass Amherst and UMass Lowell, Bridgewater State University, and Salem State University to establish veteran mentoring pilot programs to assist veterans attending their institutions adjust to civilian life.

• Property tax exemption clarification: prohibits a city or town from requesting further evidence from a disabled veteran in subsequent tax years after the veteran has been granted a property tax exemption by the assessor of that town, unless the veteran's disability rating determined by the VA is reduced.

• Founding anniversaries of U.S. Armed Forces: requires the Governor to set aside the founding date anniversaries of the U.S. Army, Air Force, Coast Guard, and Massachusetts National Guard.

• Medal of Fidelity: establishes the Massachusetts Medal of Fidelity to be presented to the next of kin of a service member or veteran who died as a result of service-connected post-traumatic stress disorder service-connected condition resulting from a traumatic brain injury, or a service-connected disease, condition or injury related to exposure to harmful toxin, herbicides, agents, or materials.

• Deborah Sampson Memorial Commission: establishes a commission to determine a location and create a memorial for Deborah Sampson, a Massachusetts resident who disguised herself as a man in the Continental Army during the American Revolutionary War.

• Funeral and burial benefits: requires funeral directors and their staffs to provide information on burial and funeral benefits for veterans.

• Tax credit for employment of National Guard members: establishes a tax credit for businesses that employ members of the National Guard.

This bill builds on multiple actions by the Legislature this session to support the Commonwealth's veterans. The Massachusetts Legislature has also passed An Act relative to the governance, structure and care of veterans at the Commonwealth's veterans' homes, making key reforms to the governance structure of the state's veterans' homes, ensuring that both homes are federally licensed as health care facilities, mandating increased state management, and providing independent oversight and accountability of veterans' homes management. In May 2021, the Legislature approved a $600 million bond authorization — with $400 million for the construction of an updated Holyoke Veterans' Home facility and $200 million to increase geographic equity and accessibility for veterans not primarily served by the veterans' Homes in Chelsea or Holyoke.

'Exploring Historic Houghs Neck' Free Tours Saturday

The Department of Natural Resources Environmental Treasures program is offering two free tours entitled "Exploring Historic Houghs Neck" Saturday, Aug. 20 at 7:30 a.m. and 9 a.m. Preregistration is required by emailing sowen@quincyma.gov.

At 7:30 a.m. Sally Owen will offer a social tour providing plenty of opportunities for participants to chat. The tour will feature a secret park, a hidden staircase and a World War I army barracks being used as a house.

At 9 a.m. Houghs Neck historian Patti Williams will lead a tour describing life on the Littlefield Farm, one of the largest farms in Houghs Neck in the 19th century.

Both tours are approximately 2 miles and feature beautiful ocean views. Meeting place and other details will be provided upon registration.

July Report: Activity Down, Average Sale Prices Up In Norfolk County

Norfolk County Register of Deeds William P. O'Donnell reports that the July 2022 numbers relative to Norfolk County recordings indicate a continuing decrease in overall real estate activity compared to the July 2021 numbers but show a marked increase in average sale prices.

"Our data indicates that the Norfolk County real estate numbers in July demonstrate a continued slowdown in the market compared to 2021 and a slight decrease from the month of June," O'Donnell said. "There were 10,884 documents recorded at the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds in July, a 35% decrease from July, 2021 and a decrease of 16% from June, 2022."

O'Donnell noted the number of deeds for July 2022, which reflect real estate sales and transfers, both commercial and residential, show a decrease of 26% from July, 2021 and a decrease of 21% from the previous month.

"However, sale prices continue to rise," he continued. "The average sale price in July was $1,220,594, a 20% increase compared to July 2021 and a slight 3% increase from June. Total dollar volume of commercial and residential sales is down, decreasing 11% from one year ago and decreasing 19% from last month."

Overall lending activity show a pronounced trend downward for the month of July. A total of 1,886 mortgages were recorded during the month, a significant decrease of 45% compared to a year ago and a decrease of 19% from June.

"It appears that the increase in the mortgage interest rates and the fact that many consumers have already refinanced continue to impact mortgage activity," O'Donnell said.

A continuing cause for concern in Norfolk County is the number of pending foreclosures. The Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has been closely watching the foreclosure market. In July, there were nine foreclosure deeds recorded as a result of mortgage foreclosures taking place in Norfolk County, four more than in July, 2021 and two more than in June.

However, there were 21 Notices to Foreclose, the first step in the foreclosure process, recorded in July, up significantly from only five recorded in July 2021.

"The dramatic increase in the number of these notices is alarming. It indicates that more of our neighbors are facing financial challenges going forward," O'Donnell said. "We will continue to monitor these numbers."

For the past several years, the Norfolk County Registry of Deeds has partnered with Quincy Community Action Programs, 617-479-8181 x376, and NeighborWorks Housing Solutions, 508-587-0950 to help anyone facing challenges paying their mortgage. Another option for homeowners is to contact the Massachusetts Attorney General's Consumer Advocacy and Response Division (CARD) at 617-727-8400.

"If you are having difficulty paying your monthly mortgage," O'Donnell said. "please consider contacting one of these non-profit agencies for help and guidance."

Homestead recordings by owners of homes and condominiums decreased again this month at the Norfolk Registry of Deeds. There was a 23% decrease in homestead recordings in July 2022 compared to July 2021.

"The reduction in recorded Declarations of Homestead from July, 2021 is not too surprising where the sales of homes continue to level off, but all homeowners, not just new purchasers, should keep in mind that a recorded Declaration of Homestead provides limited protection against the forced sale of an individual's primary residence to satisfy unsecured debt up to $500,000," O'Donnell said.

"We want to see folks protecting the biggest asset most of us have, our homes. I would urge anyone who has not availed themselves of this important consumer protection tool to consider doing so. The recording fee is only $36. Feel free to visit the Registry website at www.norfolkdeeds.org to get more information on homesteads and to make sure you have taken advantage of this protection."

O'Donnell concluded:

"July real estate activity in Norfolk County continues to show a decline from last year. We still see the increase in sale prices from last year as indicating a continuing lack of available real estate inventory but looking at the numbers from last month, it appears the market may be starting to cool down a bit.

"The Registry of Deeds is open to the public. Registry personnel are processing in-person recordings as well as electronically filed recordings. The volume of documents recorded electronically for many of our institutional users continues to increase. We are also receiving documents in person, via regular mail, Federal Express, UPS and from the outside drop-off box at 649 High Street, Dedham, MA."

Clean Energy Legislation Includes Four Sen. Keenan Amendments

and assembly of domestic supply chain components of the offshore wind industry; stimulates increased financing for permanent manufacturing facilities; advances clean energy research, technology, and innovation; and, prepares individuals for offshore wind careers by supporting workforce training at a range of educational institutions and through regional employment boards.

With the goal of making the Massachusetts offshore wind bidding process more competitive, the legislation modifies the price cap to set clear criteria to allow for offshore wind project proposals that are cost-effective and promote economic development in the Commonwealth. Under this legislation, the price cap will be removed if three or more offshore wind developers submit bids, and if less than three companies bid a modified price cap would remain in place. Preference will be given to bids that invest in local manufacturing, provide employment opportunities for underrepresented populations, and mitigate environmental impacts. Ultimately, a contract would only be approved if deemed cost-effective and beneficial to ratepayers.

The legislation also establishes a commercial fisheries commission to provide input on best practices for avoiding, minimizing, and mitigating impacts to wildlife related to offshore energy generation and transmission.

Solar energy

To support the advancement of solar power, the bill permits agricultural and horticultural land to be used to site solar panels as long as they do not impede the continued use of the land for agricultural or horticultural use, eliminates the so-called 'donut hole' for on-site solar energy net metering to promote residential solar, and loosens the so-called single parcel rule to help expand solar on sites where it already exists.

In addition to wind and solar power, the bill addresses other innovative sources of clean energy such as fusion energy and geothermal power. Acknowledging the harmful health and environmental impacts of utility-scale biomass power plant facilities, this legislation removes biomass from the list of energy-generating sources that are allowed to receive certain state incentives for generating clean electricity. To ensure that the Commonwealth has adequate storage systems to accommodate increasing amounts of clean energy that Massachusetts will be adding to its energy portfolio, this bill directs a study of how to optimize the deployment of long-term energy storage systems.

Grid readiness

The legislation also modernizes Massachusetts' electrical grid and energy storage infrastructure by requiring utility companies to upgrade the transmission and distribution grid to improve reliability and resilience and accommodate the anticipated significant shift to renewable energy.

Green transportation

As the transportation sector is the largest source of fuel emissions in Massachusetts, the bill encourages the use of electric vehicles, including expanding and codifying the Commonwealth's MOR-EV electric vehicle incentive program into statute, which provides rebates to individuals who purchase electric vehicles.

Under the bill, the rebate amount will increase by $1,000, to $3,500 for passenger cars and light-duty trucks. Moreover, electric vehicle purchasers who trade in their emission-producing vehicles will be eligible for an additional incentive of $1,000. The program may include a point-of-sale rebate model for individual purchases that offers consumers savings at the point of purchase or lease. The bill also makes used vehicles eligible for rebates. Further, the bill directs the Department of Energy Resources (DOER) to conduct an outreach campaign to promote awareness about the MOR-EV program among consumers and businesses in underserved and low-income communities, as well as in communities with high proportions of high-emission vehicles.

To expand access to electric vehicle charging stations, this bill convenes an interagency coordinating council to develop and implement a charging infrastructure deployment plan in an equitable and comprehensive manner.

The Department of Public Utilities (DPU) would be required to set vehicle electrification and greenhouse gas emission requirements for electric vehicles for transportation network companies. In addition, to ensure that zero-emission vehicle charging remains affordable for consumers, the bill requires all electricity companies to submit proposals to DPU for how they will offer reduced electricity rates for consumers who charge their zero-emission vehicles at off-peak times.

Finally, the bill takes historic steps to address emissions that come from MBTA bus fleets. Starting in 2030, this bill requires every passenger bus that is purchased or leased by the MBTA to be a zero-emission vehicle. By the end of 2040, the MBTA will be required to operate exclusively zero-emission vehicles. Underserved and low-income communities would be prioritized for the equitable deployment of these zero-emission buses.

Building decarbonization

To tackle the difficult issue of emissions from the building sector, the bill creates a 10-municipality demonstration project allowing all-electric building construction by local option. Participating municipalities must receive local approval before applying into the demonstration project. The measure has two important provisos: first, each community must first meet certain affordable housing or multifamily development thresholds; and second, each must exempt life sciences labs and health care facilities from the all-electric requirement.

The bill makes targeted enhancements to the Mass Save program, which provides rebates and incentives for owners and renters related to efficient appliances and other home energy improvements. Under the bill, priority for Mass Save projects will be given to those that maximize net climate, environmental, and equity impacts. Beginning in 2025, Mass Save funds will also be limited in most instances from going to any fossil fuel equipment.

This bill requires DPU to conduct an adjudicatory proceeding prior to approving any company-specific plan under the DPU's future of heat proceedings. In addition, the bill requires DPU to convene a stakeholder working group to develop regulatory and legislative recommendations for how Massachusetts can best align the Commonwealth's gas system enhancement program with the state's 2050 net-zero goal. The working group must submit its final recommendations to the Legislature by July 31, 2023.

Dog Days Of Summer

By PATRICK McDERMOTT
Norfolk County Sheriff

Anyone who's stepped outside in the past few weeks knows that it's been a scorcher. Here in Massachusetts, we get the double fun of high heat coupled with high humidity that can make even the most ardent sun lovers scramble for air conditioning.

The ancient Greeks associated this time of the year with the emergence of Sirius (the Dog Star) in the night sky, seeing it as a precursor to a season of humid, sultry heat. It was an association that was so strong, it lingers today in the phrase "the dog days of summer."

As a new dog owner myself – I am the proud dog dad of a Saint Bernard named Cleopatra after an historical figure who herself was no stranger to some hot climates – I know that the heat doesn't just affect those of us who walk upright but our four-legged friends, as well.

As Sheriff, it is my duty to serve the public safety needs of everyone in Norfolk County – including our pets. Because they rely on us for their care and comfort, it's important that we know how to properly provide for them during bouts of extreme weather. So, I wanted to take this opportunity to remind folks of some of the things you can do to keep your pets safe during the summer.

First, always remember that you should never leave an animal (or a child, for that matter) in a car in the summer, even if you've left the air conditioner on or the windows cracked. Cars can stall, and A/Cs can turn off, leaving your pet in danger of quickly overheating. In 85-degree heat, the temperature inside a car can get critically hot within minutes, putting your pet at risk of organ damage or death. If you see an animal trapped inside a hot car, call the police and try to find the owner. Stay with the car until help arrives.

It's always best to give your pets a chance to come indoors when the weather gets as hot as it has been, but we know that they will often need to go outside. When you take them outside, keep your walks short and try to limit your outdoor time to cooler mornings and evenings. Remember, too, that the pavement can be very hot on Fido's feet, which can lead to potential burns or discomfort for your furry friend. Dogs also regulate their heat through their paws, which means standing on a hot surface can not only burn their feet but can cause them to overheat.

To keep your pets cool, always provide plenty of shade and a supply of clean drinking water. If you are worried that your pet might be overheating, you should immediately move them to the shade or an air-conditioned area. Placing cold towels or ice packs on their torso, head, and neck while running cool (though not cold) water over them, can also help bring down their temperature. You can also give them access to small amounts of cool water to drink or let them lick ice cubes.

In addition to the heat, there are other dangers our pets may face during the summer. If you have a pool, be sure to supervise your animals around it. Not all pets can swim, and even those who can may struggle to get in and out of a pool if they fall in. It's also good to invest in a life vests for your pup if you take her boating or to open water. Dogs who love to swim can sometimes tire themselves out, and a life vest can help keep them afloat.

Finally, as anyone who's walked in tall grass in New England knows, ticks are always out in force! Keep your pets on a regular flea/tick prevention medicine, and always check for stowaways when you get back from walking in brush, grass, or wooded areas with your dog.

Summer is a great time to stretch our legs and give our animal friends a chance to burn off some energy. Taking a few moments to prepare for safety means we can continue to enjoy these summer months for many years to come.

For all household purchases, including 'big ticket' items, we have been well-served via Wirecutter combined with Consumer Reports. For automobiles, much has changed since I first started researching 10 to 12 years ago. If I try Edmunds or Kelly Blue Book, I cannot get results without disclosing contact information which produces a flood of emails and/or calls from dealers, some not even in my state. I have heard about Insurance Institute, but don't know how up to date or reliable they are. Any advice for this car shopper?

First off, if you haven't been car shopping in a dozen years prepare for a little sticker shock. In addition to higher prices, the lack of inventory due to supply chain issues has added a premium to many popular vehicles. Regarding where to research the Insurance Institute for Highway Safety (IIHS.org) SaferCar.gov provides safety and crash data. You can also look at www.Fueleconomy.gov to find out about miles per gallon and other environmental numbers. Yes, car buying sites will definitely be annoying, but you can learn plenty without divulging too much information. Sites like Truecar which powers AAA car buying service, Iseecars.com and Cargurus have both car buying and editorial content that can help with your search. Also AAA's gas watchers guide https://aaa.com/autorepair/drivingcosts will give you some repair cost history on used cars. Then of course always feel free to reach out to me. jpaul@aaanortheast.com

I am hoping you can shed some light on a problem I am having with my 2015 Volvo S60 T5 with 67,500 miles. The car is using approximately one to one and a half quarts of oil every 1,000-1,500 miles. I have read some horror stories about having to replace the entire engine or pistons and rings, etc. I love the car. I have had all maintenance done as suggested by Volvo. Any assistance would be appreciated.

There have been many reports of oil consumption on this model Volvo. Volvo did update the oil dipstick and revised the software for the low oil message. At this point you could perform a oil consumption test. This test is normally performed after an oil change and the oil cap and drain plug are marked with anti-tamper tape. If the engine is determined to use oil outside of what Volvo considers normal, the repair is typically replacing the pistons and piston rings. If the engine block is scored, then the engine is replaced. To my knowledge Volvo has not extended the drivetrain warranty of these vehicles past the standard four year/50,000-mile warranty. If Volvo determines the oil consumption is excessive, I would not be shy about asking for some customer "goodwill" in getting the car repaired. If Volvo doesn't provide any assistance and considering the car is almost eight years old, I would just check the oil every 500 miles and add oil as necessary to keep the level full.

I'm looking for an economy car and found what seems like a good condition 2015 Ford Focus with relatively low miles. What do you think of these cars, and do you think I can get 10 more years out of it?

The late model Ford Focus transmissions have been extremely problematic. Ford has replaced clutches as well as reprogrammed the car's computer system. This has been enough of a problem where there is at least one class-action lawsuit over this issue. Although it is a decent enough car to drive, considering the Focus track record I would keep looking.

This spring I replaced the tires that were on my 2018 Chevrolet Camaro with a set of high-performance Kumho tires. Before I replaced the tires, the car was averaging 24 miles per gallon. In the winter the mileage was four miles per gallon less, but that I always assumed was from the heavier snow tires, winter gas and more warm up time. So far this summer the car is averaging about 26-27 miles per gallon. Is it possible that a different tire can such an impact on miles per gallon?

Not often I get a question about why did my fuel economy go up. Tires can have an effect of overall fuel economy, but if the tires are the same size and design the mileage should be about the same. Although the tires may be the same size designation, they could have a slightly different overall dimension. If the replacement tires are larger or smaller it will affect the speedometer/odometer reading and change the miles per gallon calculation. As an example slightly larger tires will have a lower indicated speed than the stock tires and change the odometer reading. Using a GPS or smartphone app you can measure the vehicle speed more accurately than the speedometer. Although with higher gas prices and new tires with proper inflation and being a bit more careful on how you drive may be the real reason why your car's fuel economy improved.

I'm considering buying a 2023 hybrid SUV. What vehicles do you recommend? Is the Honda Pilot, which I have now, going to have a hybrid engine available?

Honda been slower to expand its hybrid offerings, even though Honda was the first automaker to offer a hybrid (Insight) in the USA. Based on what I have read I don't believe we will see a Pilot hybrid in the next few years. Depending on what you are looking for you have many choices. Today many manufacturers offer both traditional hybrids and plugin hybrids (PHEV). Some of the PHEVS are the Toyota RAV4 Prime, Kia Sorento and Hyundai Santa Fe all which offer some pure electric range and the added fuel economy of a hybrid. For a conventional hybrid the Toyota Highlander would be a good choice as would the slightly smaller Honda CR-V hybrid. Going upscale the Lexus RX and Volvo XC60 recharge would be worth looking at. Considering the amount of choices a consumer has, today in some ways is really the "golden-age" of the automobile.

I tuned into your radio program and didn't find the Car Doctor. Where did you go and how can I get my "Car Doctor" fix? I'm a long-time listener who has won several cool prizes including a AAA membership.

The last station I was on – WBOQ – was sold to a large broadcaster. Every week when I finished the program I would take the entire program and turn it into a podcast. I'm still continuing to add podcasts each week. Like the radio program these will include interesting guests, car reviews and listener submitted questions. You can find the podcast at http://johnfpaul.podbean.com or other popular podcast directories. Just search for Car Doctor Radio.

We're considering taking our new Hyundai Ioniq 5 to Florida this coming January and know that we have to consider the location and availability of EV chargers along the way to make the trip successful and less stressful. Any suggestions?

Last year I drove back and forth to Florida and spotted many electric vehicles on my trip that were hundreds of miles from home, so it is certainly possible. Most electric vehicles with navigation systems allow for easy searching of EV charging. I would also download all of the popular apps such as EVgo, ChargePoint, AAA, Plug Share and Electrify America. Tesla also has stated that they will open up their Superstation to non-Tesla vehicles by year end which will certainly help.

I have a 2012 Chrysler 300c with 24,000 miles on it. The malfunction indicator light came on. According to the manual if it is not blinking it may reset after a few cycles of driving. It did not. I took it to a mechanic and he did a check: two things came up (bad/dirty oil and a misfire on cylinder seven). He said first thing he would do is change the oil which was due anyway. I picked the car up and within a few miles the light was back on. I took it right back and he said the cylinder seven is still coming up as a misfire. According to him four out of the eight cylinders shut down when the eco light comes on but cylinder seven is not. He wants to check the car out and change the solenoid which he said would cost about $500. What do you think?

The is certainly a plausible answer. Also, these engines are also very fussy when it comes to oil type. It is important to use only 5W-20 weight and change it often. I have seen the valve train stick due to old or wrong grade oil and have misfire codes. If the engine is running normally but the light comes on perhaps drive it for a bit, then change the oil again.

My 2011 Hyundai Accent over the past several months started to buck and makes a banging noise. This happens when trying to move from a stop or trying to go faster in first gear. Not all the time, just randomly. It's been happening more often recently. I took it to the garage and drove it with them but of course, the car didn't act up. They said they can't fix it if they don't see it happen. This makes sense and I appreciate their honesty however, that doesn't help me. When the car starts to buck, I have to play with the clutch and very slowly ease the car faster, not great when cars are coming at you. I'm hoping the car doesn't finally conk out in an intersection. Any thoughts?

Engine bucking is usually related to an engine misfire. This could be due to a faulty sparkplugs or a faulty ignition coil. The other possibility Is a worn/broken engine or transmission mount. When mounts are worn, and you accelerate the engine can bounce and bang under the hood.

Hoping you can give me a little insight on an air conditioner issue with my 2013 Chrysler Town and Country van. I had a local mechanic take a look and we definitely have a leak in the rear evaporator unit. It requires a complete replacement that will cost $2,500, yikes! In the meantime, he charged the system back up and the air conditioner seemed to run nice and cold, but then all of a sudden, the blowers in the back of the van stopped working all together. No air is moving whatsoever. This all happened within the past three days, and we don't think the leak is that fast. Any thoughts about why the blower just stopped moving air?

Typically, when a blower fan stops working it is one of several possible causes. These can be the blower motor relay, open fuse, inoperative blower motor power module or resistor block, inoperative blower motor or switch and wiring. I would return to your mechanic and have them check it out.

I recently purchased a key-fob for my 2003 Volvo XC70 from an online store. It said it came with programming instructions. The instruction stated I would need to go to a Volvo dealer or locksmith. How do I program this remote key-fob?

Some vehicle key-fobs can be easily programed by locking and unlocking the doors and manipulating the key fob. Others require special tools and software to perform the programming. This is the case with your Volvo so you will need to find a specialized automotive locksmith or return to the Volvo dealer to have the key-fob programmed.

I'm confused; we are being asked to limit air conditioner use over the summer to prevent "brown-outs" but also told it would be best to buy an electric car. Can you explain this?

I have spoken with people who are responsible for the power grid, and they tell me that the grid is capable of supplying enough electricity. That is not to say that once electric cars become more than the 4.5 percent of the market

Firefighters Credited For Saving Lives At Rooming House Fire

By SCOTT JACKSON

A two-alarm fire at a Bigelow Street rooming house last month could have resulted in multiple fatalities if it were not for the actions of the first firefighting companies that arrived on scene that morning, officers with the Quincy Fire Department said Monday.

The fire at 100 Bigelow St., home to a women's rooming house, was reported just after 3 a.m. on July 31. The fire displaced 14 residents, though not all were home at the time.

Firefighters assigned to Engine 1, Ladder 1 and Rescue 1, all three of which are based out of departmental headquarters on Quincy Avenue, were the first companies to arrive on scene that morning.

Speaking at departmental headquarters Monday, and joined by several of the firefighters who were among the first-arriving crews, Capt. Mike Palaza, the incident commander during the July 31 fire, described the scene when firefighters first arrived as "absolute chaos." Firefighters were met with heavy fire at the rear of the building when they first arrived at the site.

Lt. Matt Walsh said the scene of the fire was the most complex he and Palaza, both 19-year veterans of the department, have encountered.

Four residents of the house were able evacuate on their own before firefighters arrived, including one who was experiencing a medical issue. Firefighters rescued four residents from inside the building.

"We had two people hanging out of the second floor window," when the first companies arrived, Walsh said. "We didn't know that there were four [inside] until we started rescuing the first two and then subsequently they found that were two more to rescue, so there was a total of four."

Firefighters with Engine 1 rescued two of those residents, Walsh added, and firefighters from Ladder 1 and Rescue 1 rescued the remaining two residents.

Palaza noted firefighters also searched inside the building to ensure no one was left inside.

"Quincy is a strong, aggressive, offensive firefighting department. We go in and we have to search every square inch of that building. It was a rooming home, multiple rooms, so it's more compartmentalized than a regular residential home," he said. "These firefighters searched every square inch there may not be an issue, especially in the Northeast where we have some very old infrastructure. To help mitigate this potential issue, electric cars using a combination of smart metering and programmable charging can charge the battery during off peak-low use hours. In addition, electric cars may be able to act like a storage device for electricity to help manage the peak electrical demands.

Have you driven the new Ford F-150 Lightning electric truck yet and if so, what did you think?

I did drive the Lightning truck although just for a short test drive so far and it exceeded my expectations. Like all new electric vehicles, it is fast, smooth and powerful. Ford also did a great job of utilizing the space in the truck. This includes the front trunk (frunk) which adds more enclosed lockable storage. During my limited test drive the handling was very good and the ride, firm but comfortable. Electric vehicles are not for everyone, but this one is quite good.

I have a 2014 Dodge Charger with the V-8 engine that I purchased from a fleet auction. The car runs great most of the time and then sometimes it misses and sets a misfire code. I have changed the sparkplug and ignition coil, but the problem is still there. I did a compression test of that cylinder and the one next to it and the compression was the same, so I assume the engine is okay. Any thoughts?

This engine like many will deactivate some cylinders at certain times to improve fuel economy. This is called the multiple displacement system (MDS) and on this engine selectively deactivates cylinders 1, 4, 6 and 7 during steady speed, and low speed operation to increase fuel economy. The issue could be a faulty valve lifter or MDS solenoid. I have seen some issues even caused by using the incorrect viscosity oil. Some readers have written to me and "fixed" the issue with aftermarket tuning/programming to disable the MDS solenoids.

I have a 10-year-old Toyota and the blower fan only runs at low speeds. I know from reading your column that if it only ran at high speed, it would be the blower motor resistor. Why does it only work on low but not the other speeds?

I would start with powering the blower motor directly with 12-volts, you could do this by bypassing the resistor. If the blower spins fast, the issue is the wiring or the speed selector switch. If the blower doesn't spin at high speed, it could be a faulty ground or the motor is binding up.

Not a car question, but a gasoline question. Four years ago, I purchased an expensive lawn mower from the local home improvement store. Recently it wouldn't run. I took it to a small engine shop, and they told me the engine is junk, because I have been using E-85 gasoline. Is this true and what should I do with my next mower?

It is unlikely that you were using E-85 gasoline (85 percent ethanol alcohol and 15 percent gasoline). If in fact you were using this fuel yes it could damage the engine. More than likely you are using regular pump gasoline (10 percent ethanol) and it shouldn't damage the engine. Now of course like all power equipment there are precautions you need to take when storing equipment seasonally. In some parts of the country, you can buy recreational fuel that contains no ethanol, and some equipment stores sell one and five-gallon cans of alcohol free fuel. As always check the owner's manual for recommendations (I checked Honda and Briggs and Stratton) and both stated to use 87 octane fuel with an alcohol content not greater than 10 percent. The other option-depending on the size of your property, is a battery powered mower. This way you would never need to worry about seasonal storage and fuel.

I have a 2019 Lincoln MKC and have a squeaking sound which appears to be coming from the passenger side dashboard. Any thoughts?

There are no specific technical service bulletins that address this issue. There is one for a whistle and one about the seat creaking, but not a dash rattle. At this point all you can do is take the car for a ride with a technician and demonstrate the noise. Depending on how far they need to go it could get expensive if the dash needs to be removed. One possibility is that if the cabin air filter was replaced perhaps everything wasn't installed correctly. Without hearing the noise that is the first place I would look.

My 2001 Jeep Cherokee with 325,000 miles on it has two problems. The first problem is the electric door locks for all four doors work intermittently. I had the main switch replaced and it didn't fix the problem. The second problem is the battery went completely dead. The battery is less than two years old, and I jump started it and drove it around. The battery ended up dead again the next day. I took the battery to the local NAPA store and had it charged up and the battery tested good. It sat for four days, and the battery was completely dead again. No lights were left on. What is wrong?

Someone needs to perform a parasitic draw test to look for the circuit that is staying on and draining the battery. Some common areas are the alternator, fuel pump, power seat controls even the glove compartment light. The door lock issue could also be related. A common issue with intermittent operation of door locks is a broken wire at the door hinge. This wiring issue could also be causing a short circuit and discharging the battery.

My late father and I have always loved and had vintage cars. I have driven a 1919 Model T touring, a 1956 Desoto, a 1959 Impala, a Nash, 1967 Chevy Impala SS 427 and many more. Now I hear our government is changing the gasoline from 10 to 15 percent ethanol gasoline. Isn't that gasoline dangerous to vintage cars to having a bad effect on rubber engine products as well as a damaging effect on our older engines as well as decreasing mileage on all cars as well as newer model engines. Do you think we will somehow have an additive to add so the extra alcohol destroys our hobby and cars? I hate to see my pristine 1980 Toyota Celica go to the junkyard because of "greener" gas.

There are several issues with older vehicles and higher content alcohol fuels. The higher alcohol fuels tend to clean out any accumulated dirt and debris and that debris can clog the fuel system. You are also correct that antique cars with original fuel lines tend to deteriorate when exposed to alcohol. Where I have seen E-15 sold as 88 octane fuel the gasoline is labeled at the pump as E15 and uses a separate nozzle like diesel. E15 gasoline is not just a problem for classic cars but many newer cars and recreational vehicles, marine engines and power equipment. It is confusing, although realistically most vehicles sold since 2001 should run fine on E-15 gasoline still. Many newer vehicle owner's manuals warn against using any fuel with higher than 10 percent ethanol.

of that structure…all three floors. It was done professionally and safely."

"We searched all three floors," added firefighter Evan Harrington. "Every door was padlocked, so we had to force entry into them to do that search. It was time consuming, strenuous, but everybody got it done and done well."

Firefighters also had to cut into the roof of the building with chainsaws to ventilate the building to release built-up gases.

"We literally had firefighters…on the roof relieving the toxic, combustible gases while these firefighters were inside with the hoses trying to aggressively put it out," Palaza said.

The officers who were there at the fire said the actions of the firefighters saved the lives of the residents who were rescued inside the building.

"I really do think the guys at this table, and some of the guys who aren't here today, they were just actions that if they weren't taken, we wouldn't have had four people saved. We certainly would've had had four fatalities," said Lt. Jim McCluskey of Engine 1. "I just don't think that can be overstated. This was a success story in the making from the most junior firefighter there that performed heroic duties to our leadership and the backing we receive from the mayor with everything we have."

"We did the job we were expected to do, that we're trained to do, that the city and public put their faith in that we're going to get done," Walsh added. "I think we just did what any of the other 200 plus guys in the department would have done – we just happen to be the group that was working that day."

Having adequate staffing, including the rescue truck in service, was important in saving the lives of those residents, Palaza said. He credited the city and local firefighters union for ensuring the department has enough firefighters on duty.

"Hands down that played a huge role," Palaza said. "Lives would have been lost if that wasn't the case. That's a fact."

In addition to rescuing the residents of the rooming house, Palaza noted firefighters stopped the blaze from spreading to nearby homes.

"That area is very dense. The actions of the first arriving firefighters stopped that fire. They not only saved lives, they not only neutralized the incident, they stopped it from spreading to other homes all within a few moments of arrival," he said. "I was very lucky and proud to be a part of that and witness it from my viewpoint. It made my job a lot less stressful."

All told more 50 firefighters responded to the scene of the fire. Engines 3 and 4 along with Ladder 2 were called to the fire on the first alarm. Engines 2, 5 and 6, plus Ladder 5, were called when the second alarm was struck. Companies from Boston and Weymouth provided station coverage during the fire.

In addition, Palaza credited the Quincy Police Department, Brewster Ambulance and the Boston Sparks for their help during the fire. The latter two provided water and other assistance to firefighters, who were contending with temperatures in the 80s even though the fire started during the early morning.

As of Monday, the cause of the July 31 fire remained under investigation by the State Fire Marshal's Office as well as the Quincy Police and Fire Departments.

Anyone with information on the fire, its origin, or individuals involved is asked to call the Arson Watch Reward Program Hotline at 1-800-682-9229. The Arson Watch Reward Program is operated by the Massachusetts Property Insurance Underwriters Association and offers rewards of up to $5,000 for information that solves or detects arson crimes. All calls are confidential. Tipsters may also contact Quincy Police detectives at 617-745-5774.

Quincy Point Congregational Church

It is the Third week of the "Quest – The Awakened Traveler," a 5-week summer sermon series adapted from Worship Design Studio at Quincy Point Congregational Church.

This Sunday is "The Reflection." The church explores relationship with the wider world and a wider perspective of our own communities.

Worship begins at 10 a.m. (live streamed or in the sanctuary) on Sunday, Aug. 21 at Quincy Point Congregational Church, 444 Washington St.

Share some pictures of your journeys with the hashtag #quincyfindingbeauty, #quincyquest or #travelwhereqare (or use all three).

View the live stream on the Quincy Point Congregational Church's Facebook or YouTube pages or at www.quincypointcong.org). The sanctuary is air-conditioned and accessible with designated parking and an elevator on the Abbey Road Side of the church

Fundraising for Interfaith Social Services and World Central Kitchen will continue until Sept. 4. Collections will be taken on Sundays at 10 a.m. worship or mail to the church or donate online at https://www.quincypointcong.org/donate. Checks can be made payable to Quincy Point Congregational Church with the memo: ISS/WCK.

The Missions and Social Justice Committee continues the 2022 Clothing drive to help homeless teens and families of the Quincy Public School McKinney Vento program. During the summer collection, the focus is on younger children. New items are needed for children, sizes XS to XL (gender neutral preferred) Items needed most are underwear and socks.

Also needed are t-shirts, sweatpants and leggings.

Drop off to the church on Sundays before 10 a.m. worship or weekdays from 9:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Ring the doorbell by the bakery or the Abbey Road accessible entrance. You can contact the church office at 617-773-6424 or email: office@quincypointcong.org. Thanks in advance for helping the Quincy community.

Aug. 21 is also third Sunday of the month, where for decades the QPCC church members and friends have previously collected nonperishable food for Interfaith Social Services. This collection is now updated to include personal care items for people who use Interfaith Social Services.

Donation boxes are located in the entrances and in the narthex.

AAA: Gasoline Prices Down 10 Cents, Average $4.27 Per Gallon

Massachusetts's average gas price is down 10 cents from last week ($4.37), averaging $4.27 per gallon, according to AAA Northeast.

Monday's price is 40 cents lower than a month ago ($4.67), and $1.22 higher than Aug. 15, 2021 ($3.05). Massachusetts's average gas price is 32 cents higher than the national average.

The national average for a gallon of regular gas fell 10 cents in the past week to $3.95, due primarily to stable oil prices and fewer drivers than usual fueling up.

"Falling pump prices may eventually lead to more drivers hitting the road again," said Mary Maguire, AAA Northeast Director of Public and Government Affairs. "But that hasn't happened yet. Instead, many drivers are waiting for prices to fall further before reverting to their typical driving habits."

AAA Northeast's Aug. 15 survey of fuel prices found the current national average to be 10 cents lower than last week ($4.05), averaging $3.95 a gallon. Monday's national average price is 62 cents lower than a month ago ($4.57), and 77 cents higher than this day last year ($3.18).

Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth Wins Second Consecutive South Shore Championship

The Wollaston Senior Babe Ruth baseball team (ages 16-19) completed their mission. They set out this season to repeat as the South Shore League Champions and they accomplished that goal Aug. 4th at Adams Field with a victory over Dorchester.

In the championship series Wollaston lost the first game to Dorchester 11-10 and fought back to win the next two games 10-4 and 6-3 to retain their crown. Wollaston finished the season with a 13-3-1 record.

This year's team was built on teamwork and friendship. The players were a very tight knit group constantly communicating with each other in the field and discussing the game action while in the dugout. The constant chatter along with "chirping" at each other kept everyone loose and helped relieve tension. The team played terrific defense with many Sports Center worthy catches and throws. That style of play along with outstanding team speed, timely hitting and stellar pitching helped the team to many wins. Nothing was more important though, than after a great defensive play or a big hit to see the players meet their teammate with high fives as he returned to the bench area.

The experience of winning the championship a year ago was definitely a factor in being able to win again. The returning players understood what was necessary to win. The expression, "winning is fun but winning at the end is the most fun" resonated with the players. Head Coach Paul Hellmuth and Assistant Coach Joe Mullen stressed that if you want to win you must focus on the play...make the play in front of you. And then move on to the next play and the next at bat.

Paul Hellmuth led the team from the beginning to the end and ensured everyone got on the field in a position where he could succeed as a player and teammate, and he stressed fundamental baseball. Joe Mullen spoke constantly of focusing on the field and utilizing the team's superior footspeed on the basepaths. Senior Babe Ruth is the highest division of youth baseball in the Babe Ruth family. For information about next year's team, contact Paul Hellmuth at (781) 706-7594.

The winning roster this season was made up of all Quincy players: Martin Rigby, Coleman Ross, Nick Ferrara, Drew Boretti, Anthony Morabito, Joe Pontremoli, Harrison Stengel, Kevin Coyman, Owen Rigby, Joseph Lencki, Zachary Donaghue, Drew Peterson, Ryen Lawton, David Noble, Robert Broderick, Hugh Crawford and Samuel Swan.

Democratic Candidates Forum Aug. 23

The Braintree, Quincy, and Weymouth Democratic Committees invite the public to a statewide Democratic Candidates Forum on Tuesday, August 23rd.

The program will take place at Braintree Town Hall – Cahill Auditorium, 1 JFK Memorial Drive.

Doors will open at 5:30 p.m., and the program will begin at 6 p.m. The forum will provide the invited candidates a platform to speak directly to local voters and highlight their policy agendas.

25% Turnout Seen Here In State Primary

BALLOT DROP BOX outside City Hall at 1305 Hancock St. is available for voters who wish to drop off their mail-in ballots. Completed ballots can also be mailed using the provided envelope, returned to the Election Department on the second floor of the glass City Hall annex building, or brought to the city's in-person early voting locations while those locations are open for early voting. For the primary, all ballots must be received by 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 6, in order to be counted.

voting ballots, I think about 25 percent," she said when asked about the turnout.

"In 2018, the September primary, we had 19.91 percent. That being said, we only had 60,000 voters," Crispo added, citing the uptick in voters since then as another reason for the predicted turnout of 25 percent.

The deadline for voters to request a mail-in ballot for the primary is 5 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 29. For the primary, ballots must be received by election officials no later than 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Sept. 6, in order to be counted. Ballots received after the deadline, even if postmarked on or before Sept. 6, will not be counted.

Voters can return their ballots by mail using the provided envelope, which does not require the voter to pay for postage. Quincy voters can also drop off their ballots in the ballot drop-box located outside City Hall, 1305 Hancock St. in Quincy Center, or return their ballot in-person to the Election Department on the second floor of the glass City Hall annex building. Ballots can also be brought to the city's in-person early voting locations while they are open for early voting.

In-person early voting will begin on Saturday, Aug. 27, and continue through Friday, Sept. 2.

On Saturday, Aug. 27, and Sunday, Aug. 28, early voting will take place inside the gymnasium at North Quincy High School at 316 Hancock St. Polls will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. both days. Voters are asked to use the Hunt Street entrance to the gym.

From Monday, Aug. 29 to Friday, Sept. 2, early voting will take place inside City Hall. Polls will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. all five days.

Absentee balloting is also available for the election. To qualify, a voter must be away from their city or town on the day of the election or have a disability or religious belief that prevents them from going to the polls that day. The deadline for absentee balloting is noon on Friday, Sept. 2.

The deadline to register to vote in the primary is Saturday, Aug. 27; the deadline is now 10 days ahead of the election, rather than 20, as a result of the VOTES Act approved earlier this year by state lawmakers.

Crispo said residents will be able to register to vote at City Hall that day from 8:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. Residents will also be able to register to vote that day at North Quincy High School while it is open for early voting, and can cast their ballots there that same day.

As in years past, unenrolled voters can request either a Democratic or Republican ballot in the primary, without having to join that party.

The winners the Sept. 6 primary will advance to the general election, which will be held on Tuesday, Nov. 8.

Headlining this year's contests in Massachusetts is the race for the open governor's seat. Incumbent Republican Gov. Charlie Baker is not seeking reelection after two terms in office and Lt. Gov. Karyn Polito is neither seeking reelection nor running for governor.

In the Democratic primary, Maura Healey of Boston, currently the state's attorney general, is unopposed. State Sen. Sonia Chang-Diaz's name also appears on the ballot but she has withdrawn from the primary.

The Republican primary features a two-way race for the nomination. The contest is between Geoff Diehl of Whitman, a former state representative, and Wrentham businessman Chris Doughty.

There are also competitive primaries in the race for lieutenant governor.

Three candidates are running on the Democratic side. They are Salem Mayor Kimberly Driscoll; state Rep. Tami Gouveia of Acton; and state Sen. Eric Lesser of Longmeadow.

Two candidates are facing off in the GOP primary, Leah Allen of Danvers and Kate Campanale of Spencer. Both are former state representatives.

In the race to replace Healey as attorney general, three candidates are running in the Democratic primary.

They include Andrea Campbell, a former Boston city councillor; attorney Shannon Liss-Riordan of Brookline; and Quentin Palfrey, a former assistant attorney general, of Weston.

The winner of that primary will face attorney James McMahon of Bourne in November. He is unopposed in the Republican primary.

The Democratic primary also includes a contested race for secretary of state. Incumbent William Galvin of Boston is seeking reelection and is opposed in the primary by Tanisha Sullivan, also of Boston, who is the president of the Boston branch of the NAACP.

The winner will face Rayla Campbell of Whitman in November. She is unopposed in the Republican primary.

The Democratic primary also has a two-person race for the open state auditor position. That race pits Christopher Dempsey, a Brookline town meeting member, against state Sen. Diana DiZoglio of Methuen.

The winner in that contest will go against Anthony Amore of Winchester in November. Amore, the director of security at the Isabella Stewart Gardner Museum, is unopposed in the GOP primary.

The state's remaining constitutional officer, Treasurer Deborah Goldberg, a Brookline Democrat, is unopposed in the primary contest and will not have a Republican opponent in November.

This fall's election in Massachusetts also features races for seats in the US House of Representatives, but not the US Senate.

In the Eighth Congressional District, which includes Quincy, Rep. Stephen Lynch of Boston is unopposed in the Democratic primary.

Two candidates are running in the Republican primary for the same seat: Robert Burke of Milton and Hamilton Soares Rodrigues of Canton.

Seats in the state legislature on Beacon Hill are also up for grabs this year.

Incumbent Sen. John Keenan of the Norfolk-Plymouth District, which includes all of Quincy, is unopposed in the Democratic primary. In the Republican primary, Gary Innes of Hanover is likewise running unopposed.

One of Quincy's three state representatives, all Democrats, is facing a challenger in the primary. The primary in the First Norfolk District pits incumbent Rep. Bruce Ayers against Casey Dooley; both are Quincy residents. No Republican is running in that district.

Rep. Tackey Chan of the Second Norfolk District and Rep. Ronald Mariano of the Third Norfolk District are both unopposed in their respective primaries. Chan will face a Republican challenger – Sharon Cintolo of Quincy – in November while Mariano, the speaker of the House, does not have a GOP opponent.

The Democratic primary also includes a contest for Norfolk County commissioner between incumbent Peter Collins of Milton and Paul Yorkis of Medway, a former member of the town's planning board.

The November election will also include a race for the Fourth District Governor's Council seat between incumbent Democrat Christopher Iannella Jr. and Republican Helene "Teddy" MacNeal, both Boston residents.

Norfolk District Attorney Michael Morrissey and Norfolk County Sheriff Patrick McDermott, both Quincy Democrats, are also on this year's ballot. Both are unopposed in the primary and neither will have a Republican opponent in November.

Street Listing Shows Wards, Precincts

The new ward and precinct boundaries, and related changes to legislative and congressional districts, come into effect on Dec. 31 of this year. Voting in this fall's election will take place along the new boundaries, meaning voters will cast ballots in their new polling precinct as indicated on the street listing, not their old one.

A complete list of the city's polling places is available online at quincyma.gov. The list can be found by navigating to the Election Department's page within the page for the City Clerk's Office.

Quincy will be divided between 31 precincts as a result of the new map. The map includes a new precinct – Ward 5, Precinct 1A – while Precinct 3A within Ward 2 will cease to exist.

The new precinct was added because Precinct 1 in Ward 5 has been split between the Second and Third Norfolk Districts in the state House of Representatives. Precinct 1 is in the second district, currently represented by Tackey Chan, while 1A is in the third district, represented by Ronald Mariano.

Harold J. McFadd

After a beautiful life of 98 ½ years, Harold J. "Harry" McFadd peacefully passed away in his home at Allerton House in Weymouth, MA on Aug. 6, 2022. Born in Boston on Feb. 10, 1924, and the youngest of seven children born to Joseph McFadd, originally of Carlisle, England and Fabiola (Corbeil) McFadd, originally of Montreal, Quebec, Harry was raised in the city's neighborhoods of South Boston and Dorchester. Harry was a 1941 graduate of Commerce High School in Boston. A World War II veteran, Harry served in the US Army Air Forces in the Pacific Theater. After the war, Harry worked at Gillette Company in Boston, before transitioning to New England Telephone, where he had a long career.

Harry's story cannot be told without including M. Elizabeth "Betty" (Powers) McFadd, the love of his life. Harry and Betty met when they were teenagers and married in 1946. Together, they had 7 children and raised their family in Weymouth. They were close to their siblings and families, and had a circle of lifelong friends. There was nothing Harry and Betty loved more than being surrounded by family during holidays and other gatherings. Harry and Betty loved music and were wonderful dancers. They belonged to square and round dancing clubs for many years. Harry was a self-taught musician, played the guitar and banjo, and enjoyed years of playing music with friends, and sing-alongs. In retirement, Harry and Betty moved to Leisurewoods in Rockland, MA, and were avid travelers.

HAROLD J. MCFADD

Harry was predeceased by his wife, Betty, and, recently, his daughter, Pauline (McFadd) Sweeney of Quincy and Hull, MA. He is survived by James McFadd & his partner Candace of Zephyrhills, Florida; Richard McFadd & his wife Sherry of Marshfield, MA; son-in-law Dennis S. Sweeney of Quincy and Hull, MA; Thomas McFadd & his wife Anne of Los Angeles, CA; David McFadd & his wife Lisa of Waltham, MA; Joseph McFadd & his wife Rawley of Lancaster, MA; Betty Ann (McFadd) Gwatkin & her husband David of Lyndonville, VT. He is also survived by 9 grandchildren, 4 great grandchildren, and one great-great grandchild.

The family would like to express their gratitude to the staff at Allerton House assisted living in Weymouth for their kind and loving support. We would also like to thank Norwell VNA and Hospice staff and volunteers who reached out and helped Harry tremendously.

A Celebration of Life will be held in September.

Mary G. Lawlor, 87

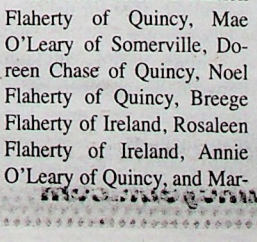
Mary G. (McDonald) Lawlor, age 87, a longtime resident of Quincy, died peacefully, Friday, Aug. 12, 2022 at South Shore Hospital, in the comfort of her loving family.

Mary was born in Roxbury, to the late Charles and Helen (Clancy) McDonald. She was raised and educated in Providence, R.I. where she was a graduate of Hope High School. She lived in Quincy for sixty-three years.

After raising her children, Mary worked in the office, as a computer operator, at the former Goodman Knitting Company in Brockton for fifteen years.

As a woman of faith, Mary was an active member of Saint John the Baptist Parish in Quincy for many years where she volunteered assisting with the Cub Scouts.

She enjoyed trips to the casinos with family and friends. Most of all, her greatest joy was her family, and she was especially proud of her grandchildren and great-grandchildren.



MARY G. LAWLOR

Beloved bride and best friend for fifty-six years of the late Edward F. Lawlor, Sr.

Devoted mother of James P. Lawlor and his wife Carol L. (Bailey) Lawlor of Weymouth, Marie A. Lawlor of Quincy, and the late Edward F. Lawlor, Jr. and his surviving wife Anita M. Horne Lawlor of Bellingham.

Loving grandmother of Benjamin Lawlor and his wife Kristen of N.H., Michael Lawlor and his wife Angela of Hatboro, Penn., Rachel Lawlor of Waltham, Declan and Dillon Lawlor of Weymouth.

Loving great-grandmother of Jack, Molly Rose, Shannon, and just arrived, Claire Gianna.

One of five siblings, Mary was the dear sister of Rita Sheehan and Helen McDonald, both of R.I., and predeceased by Dolores Robideau and Annetta Moniz.

She is also survived by many loving nieces, nephews, Godchildren, and in-laws

Visiting hours were held at the Sweeney Brothers Home for Funerals, 1 Independence Ave., Quincy, on Monday, Aug. 15. A Funeral Mass was celebrated in Saint John the Baptist Church, 44 School St., Quincy, on Tuesday, Aug. 16. Interment at the Massachusetts National Cemetery in Bourne will take place privately at a later date.

For those who wish, donations in Mary's memory may be made to the Daughters of Mary of Nazareth, P.O Box 690789, Quincy, MA 02269.

You are invited to visit www.thesweeneybrothers.com or call 617-472-6344.

Patricia Flaherty, 84

Patricia Flaherty of Randolph, formerly of Quincy, passed away peacefully on Sunday, Aug. 14, 2022. She was 84.

She was born in Boyle, Co. Roscommon, Ireland to Kathleen (Boylan) and Patrick J. Flaherty and raised in Ireland. In her early twenties she moved to Dorchester, MA. She worked as an Office Administrator with Liberty Mutual Insurance and was able to retire after a long-distinguished career.

Patricia had a quiet disposition but that didn't stop her from joking and being around the people she loved. In her spare time, she enjoyed being around her family. She also liked to travel back to Ireland at least once a year to keep in touch with family.

PATRICIA FLAHERTY

Devoted sister of Marion Flaherty of Quincy, Mae O'Leary of Somerville, Doreen Chase of Quincy, Noel Flaherty of Quincy, Breege Flaherty of Ireland, Rosaleen Flaherty of Ireland, Annie O'Leary of Quincy, and Margaret Whelan of Ireland. Also survived by many nieces and nephews. She is predeceased by her siblings: Elizabeth "Lily" Flaherty, Robert Flaherty and Patrick Flaherty.

Relatives and friends are respectfully invited to greet the family during the visiting hours on Wednesday, Aug. 17, from 4-7 p.m. in the Keohane Funeral Home, 785 Hancock St., Quincy. A Celebration of Life Service will be held in the funeral home at 9:15 a.m. on Thursday prior to the Funeral Mass in St. Joseph's Church, Quincy at 10 a.m. Burial in Cedar Grove Cemetery, Boston. Please see www.Keohane.com for directions and online condolences.

Volunteers Inducted Into Interfaith Social Services' Hall Of Fame

Blue Cross Blue Shield Of MA 2022 Community Partner Of Year

Seventeen South Shore residents were recently inducted into Interfaith Social Services' Matti Lang Hall of Fame. The volunteers were honored at a Volunteer Appreciation Night at the Quincy Masonic Building on Aug. 2. Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts was also honored at the event for their exemplary commitment to volunteerism and named Interfaith's Community Partner of the Year.

Interfaith Social Services operates one of Greater Boston's largest emergency food pantries, a mental health counseling center, Thrift Shop and homelessness prevention program. Since 1947, Interfaith has been a safety net for thousands of children and families from the South Shore who are struggling to make ends meet.

Volunteers are the heart and soul of Interfaith's programs, and the Hall of Fame recognizes those who have served at Interfaith regularly for at least one year. The Hall of Fame is named after one of Interfaith's most dedicated volunteers, Matti Lang, who gave decades of his life selflessly serving Interfaith's clients.

This year's honorees include: Hingham resident Mary Kerrigan; Milton residents Connie Corcoran and Liz Tangusso; Pembroke resident Jill Rupple; Quincy residents Tricia Bertucci, Susan Bill, Bernadette Connolly, Therese Dolbec, Alan Howarth, Helen Irvin, Cathy Kennedy, Gene Lee, Heather Nolasco, Debbie Stadnicki and Jan Whalen; and Weymouth residents William Blackmer and Ann O'Brien.

In addition to the Hall of Fame induction, Interfaith also honored their 2022 Community Partner of the Year, Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts. This award honors businesses or organizations that have demonstrated an outstanding commitment to volunteerism.

Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts has been a loyal corporate partner of Interfaith since 2014. Blue Crew volunteers have donated more than 1,000 volunteer hours to Interfaith over the past eight years. In addition to sending monthly volunteer teams to Interfaith's food pantry, Blue Cross has sponsored and participated in the annual Stop the Stigma 5K and Interfaith's annual Feed the Hungry Gala. They've donated towards Interfaith's seasonal programs and organized food and clothing drives.

During the critical pandemic period, when Interfaith's client numbers continued to rise, Blue Cross also provided more than 10,000 meal kit packages for Interfaith's food pantry. With a large percentage of their employees working from home due to the pandemic, Blue Cross brought back furloughed cafeteria staff to prepare hundreds of meal kits per day to donate to community members in need.

"We thank Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts for cultivating the philosophy of giving and service in their offices," said Paula Daniels, Interfaith's Director of Development. "We are deeply grateful for the time and service their hard-working teams have given to us."

Several Blue Cross Blue Shield of Massachusetts employees attended the volunteer appreciation event and accepted the award on behalf of Blue Cross.

"Blue Cross is committed to creating more equitable, just and healthy communities," said Jeff Bellows, vice president of corporate citizenship and public affairs. "We're proud to partner with Interfaith Social Services and to engage our employees in supporting their vital work in the Quincy community. We're humbled to be recognized as the Partner of the Year and look forward to many more opportunities to work together to ensure community members have access to the resources necessary to support healthy lifestyles."

Volunteers at Interfaith Social Services commit to a three-hour shift per week. Shifts are available Monday-Friday, between 9:30am and 7pm. Opportunities include working in the Bureau Drawer Thrift Shop, assisting in food rescue operations, filling orders for clients in the food pantry, staffing the front desk, and stocking and inventorying the pantry.

Those interested in volunteering at Interfaith Social Services are encouraged to contact Paula Daniels at 617-773-6203 ext. 28 or pdaniels@interfaithsocialservices.org.

SEVENTEEN LOCAL RESIDENTS have been inducted into Interfaith Social Services' Matti Lang Hall of Fame. The volunteers have given their time regularly for at least one year. (Left to right) Gene Lee of Quincy, Debbie Stadnicki of Quincy, Jan Whalen of Quincy, Jill Rupple of Pembroke, Interfaith's Director of Development, Paula Daniels of Norton, Ann O'Brien of Weymouth, Bernadette Connolly of Quincy, Helen Irvin of Quincy, Heather Nolasco of Quincy and Alan Howarth of Quincy.

YMCA Receives Summer Food Bonus Grant

The South Shore YMCA has been named as a recipient of a $5,000 Summer Food Bonus Grant by YMCA of the USA, funds intended to help fight food insecurity in the Y's service area.

The Y utilized the grant in July and August to increase its capacity to provide equitable access to food to summer campers attending Camp Quirk in Quincy.

"It's hard to be a kid and have limited options to find nutritious food," said Katelyn Szafir, executive director of the Quincy Y. "We are working to fix such problems, so that no kids goes hungry."

The grant expands upon a $10,000 Food Program Grant from YMCA of the USA that focuses on improving access to food for kids throughout the school year. The Y operates afterschool programs in three communities – Quincy, Norwell and Scituate – and early learning centers in Hanover, Quincy and Norwell, interacting with more than 900 children per week, from six months old to middle schoolers.

"Their needs can vary, obviously," said Kristine Swan, vice president of Youth Development for the Y. "But we are here for their care, growth and development, and that includes providing healthy snacks and opportunities for physical activity on any day those children are within our care."

A benefit of being named as a recipient of the Food Program and Summer Food Bonus Grants is the opportunity for best practices sharing with other "Anti-Hunger Heroes" working at YMCAs across the United States.

"The Food Program Grant has helped us prepare for the return to school in the fall, both in terms of our physical capacity to store and deliver food, but also in the realm of new ideas," said Swan. "YMCAs everywhere are doing this work and we are all sharing our ideas liberally, knowing that we are all facing the same issues and hoping to reach the same goals of eradicating food insecurity."

For more information about the South Shore YMCA or the Summer Food Bonus Grant, contact Mary Orne, South Shore YMCA Chief Development Officer, at morne@ssymca.org.

THE MIRACLE PRAYER

Dear Heart of Jesus, in the past, I have asked for many favors.

This time, I ask you this very special favor (mention favor). Take it dear Heart of Jesus, and place it within your own broken heart where your father sees it. Then in his merciful eyes it will become your favor, not mine.

Amen.

Say this prayer for 3 days, promise publication and favor will be granted, no matter how impossible. Never known to fail. M.B. 8/18

Salome's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) A turn in a relationship upsets the amorous Arian, who is puzzled by Cupid's romantic antics. Be patient and considerate. The confusion will soon sort itself out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) It's a good time for travel-loving Taureans to take off for fun-filled jaunts to new places. And don't be surprised if Cupid tags along for what could be a very eventful trip.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) You appear to be of two minds about continuing a relationship that seems to be riding roughshod over your emotions. A frank talk could help you decide one way or the other.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) Stepping back from a relationship problem provides a fresh perspective on how to deal with it. Meanwhile, watch your words. Something said in anger now could backfire later.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) A changing situation makes the Big Cat uneasy. But hold on until things settle down in about a week. Meanwhile, continue your good work on that still-unfinished project.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) A decided improvement in a workplace situation results in an unexpected, but very welcome, added benefit for everyone. Personal relationships also improve.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Money matters remain a bit unsettled, but soon will ease into the kind of stability you appreciate. Meanwhile, an expanding social life offers a chance to make new friends.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) Use an unexpected roadblock in your monetary dealings to reassess your financial plans and make changes, if necessary. It soon will be smooth sailing again.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) Aspects of love are strong for both single and paired Sagittarians. Professional dealings also thrive under the Sag's clever handling of difficult situations.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) Set a realistic goal and follow it through to completion. Remember, you're more likely to impress the right people with one well-done job than with lots of jobs left undone.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) You like to plan ahead. That's fine. But, be prepared to make some changes because of an unsettled period that influences your aspects throughout the next week.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) A brief phase of instability affects your usual work cycle. Use the time to catch up on chores around the house or office. Things will settle down soon after this week.

BORN THIS WEEK: You love being the center of attention and probably would be a big success in show business.

HERE IS A PLEASANT LITTLE GAME that will give you a message every day. It's a numerical puzzle designed to spell out your fortune. Count the letters in your first name. If the number of letters is 6 or more, subtract 4. If the number is less than 6, add 3. The result is your key number. Start at the upper left-hand corner and check one of your key numbers, left to right. Then read the message the letters under the checked figures give you.

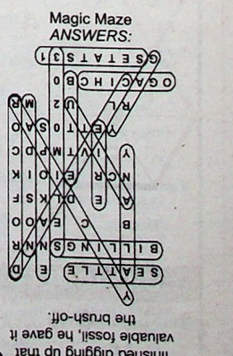
Magic Maze ANSWERS:



HOLLYWOOD

by Tony Rizzo

HOLLYWOOD – Is "Indiana Jones 5" Harrison Ford's last film? Five-time-Oscar-winning composer John Williams let it drop, as he announced that he'd be retiring after this film, that he believed Ford would be retiring as well. After five Indiana Jones films and a career spanning over 57 films, Ford's earned the right to do nothing. For the first four "Indiana Jones" films written by George Lucas, Steven Spielberg served as director, but "Indiana Jones 5" will not be directed by Spielberg or written by Lucas. Spielberg once said he'd never make an "Indiana Jones" film without George Lucas. Spielberg's kept his word -- in February 2020, Spielberg passed the baton to director James Mangold, who helmed "Walk the Line," "The Wolverine" and "Ford v Ferrari" (among others). The story's been written by Mangold, along with Jez and John-Henry Butterworth, who were also writers for "Ford v Ferrari." Originally set in 2016 for a 2019 release, it'll now open July 2023, with Ford, Phoebe Waller-Bridge, Mads Mikkelsen, Toby Jones and Antonio Banderas. Filming began in June 2021 and wrapped this past February.

Fans of "That '70s Show" will get to revisit the series when it morphs into "That '90s Show." It's now set in 1995 and focuses on the offspring of Eric Forman and Donna Pinciotti. Ashton Kutcher, Mila Kunis, Topher Grace, Laura Prepon and Wilmer Valderama (now a regular on "NCIS") will be returning as guest stars. Kutcher, currently on-screen in "Vengeance" with B.J. Novak and Issa Rae, stars in James Franco's upcoming film "The Long Home," with Josh Hutcherson, Courtney Love, Timothy Hutton and Josh Hartnett. "The Long Home" was completed in 2017 and remains in limbo, awaiting a distributor. We'll see his Netflix rom-com "Your Place or Mine," with Reese Witherspoon, Tig Notaro and Steve Zahn, long before that. Kutcher's wife, Mila Kunis, stars with Finn Wittrock, Connie Britton and Jennifer Beals in Netflix's "Luckiest Girl Alive," dropping later this year.

In the late '70s, I was a columnist for the legendary "Photoplay" magazine, which presented their awards on Johnny Carson's "The Tonight Show" to such stars as John Wayne and Ann-Margret. I needed a date for the posh after-party and asked Sally Struthers. She'd just begun playing Gloria in "All in the Family," and she accepted. Sally's taking on Cloris Leachman's classic Frau Blucher role in London's version of Mel Brooks' hit Broadway musical "Young Frankenstein" at La Mirada Theatre in Southern California come September. Can little Gloria make horses rear up like Cloris Leachman did, or will that take special coaching?

KOVELS' Antiques & Collecting

By Terry and Kim Kovel

Mortar and Pestle Sign — Large signs with flashing lights and moving graphics and ads that identify a store by brand or content are important. But there were no electric signs before Edison invented the light bulb, so what did they use?

The cigar store sign – a life-size, carved wooden Indian often holding tobacco leaves – is recognized even today. But what could serve as a trademark for a drug store or medical shop? Some 19th-century stores used a large glass jar in a special shape known as an apothecary jar. The jar was sometimes filled with colored water. By the 1920s, many shops used a large sign shaped like a mortar and pestle.

Pharmacies still use pictures of mortars for signs. A Cowan auction sold an elaborate sign shaped like a mortar with a pestle handle sticking up from the inside. The sign was covered with colored cut glass that lit up on the outside. The 1920s sign was estimated at $1,000 to $2,000 and sold for $8,125.

Q: I found an odd, old nail that's about 2 1/2 inches long and has a flat round head that's about 3/4 inch wide. There are two numbers stamped on the top. Can you tell me what this was used for?

A: You have a date nail. They were primarily used by railroads on treated railroad ties to indicate the year the tie was treated or the year it was laid. Most were made of steel, but some were made of iron or copper. Different shaped heads or letters were sometimes used to indicate the type of timber, whether it was new or used or something other than the date. Date nails were first used in France in 1859 and in the U.S. beginning in 1897. Use of date nails declined during World War II, and almost no railroads have used them since 1970. You might be able to find the name or identifying mark of the nail manufacturer on the shank of your nail. A collection of railroad tie date nails from 1907 to 1940 sold for $36 at a recent auction of railroad memorabilia.

Now here's a tip!

by Jo Ann Derson

• To clean out the drawers of my husband's tool cabinet without disturbing the tools, I tucked a knee-high panty hose leg over my vacuum cleaner wand. Most things stayed put, but the one or two small pieces of hardware that got sucked up were easily retrieved. I also did this on his workbench. I picked up all the dust and shavings along with the stray pieces of hardware. I pulled them out of the hose leg, and they were in a tidy pile for him to put away. – U.L. in Kansas

• Ripen a green tomato by wrapping it in a sheet of newspaper or placing it in a plain, small paper bag. Leave it on the counter and check it daily until ripe.

• You can keep ice cream from dripping out of the bottom of a cone. All you have to do is just place a small marshmallow or a piece of marshmallow in the bottom of the cone before you fill it with ice cream.

• Our family loves to make our own pizza, and we purchase dough from a pizzeria. On pizza nights, I pick up the dough first thing on the way home from work. I get it close to my work and let it sit in a bowl in the car while I pick up the kids and drive home. It takes about 45 minutes, so it's risen nicely while we've been on the go. – E.F. in New York

• If you've just purchased an expensive electronic item, take the packaging to a recycling center rather than advertise your purchase by putting the box at the curb. If you aren't able to take it somewhere, cut the box into uniform pieces and bind them together, nonprinted side facing out.

Q: Whatever happened to the movie adaptation of the nonfiction book "The Devil in the White City"? I remember hearing years ago that Tom Cruise was going to star in it, but as far as I know, the movie never did come out. – K.L.

A: There's been a recent development in the saga of adapting Erik Larson's best-selling book "The Devil in the White City" to film, but first, let's review how we got there. Tom Cruise initially secured the rights to the book, which is set during the 1893 World's Fair in Chicago. Time runs out, and Cruise's deal expires. According to "Chicago" magazine, Leonardo DiCaprio acquired the film rights in 2010, with Martin Scorsese set to direct. In 2019, the project was reimagined as a series, DiCaprio and Scorsese still attached, with an eventual home on Hulu.

Recently, a casting announcement was made. Keanu Reeves ("The Matrix Resurrections") will play architect Daniel Burnham, but no other cast members have been announced, most notably who will play serial killer H.H. Holmes.

Hulu plans for the eight-episode limited series to air sometime in 2024.

Q: I was so shocked and sorry to hear that Anne Heche was involved in a terrible car accident recently. I've loved her ever since she played twins on a soap opera decades ago. What were their names again? – L.O.

A: Actress Anne Heche first became a household name among soap fans when she played twins Vicky and Marley on "Another World" from 1987 to 1991. She won a Daytime Emmy Award, and then went on to have a successful movie career, namely "Six Days, Seven Nights" opposite Harrison Ford, "Donnie Brasco" with Johnny Depp, and even a remake of "Psycho," where she played the Marion Crane (Janet Leigh) role.

Heche also had a successful primetime television career with regular roles in "Everwood," "Nip/Tuck" and "Men in Trees." She's also in the upcoming, highly anticipated HBO series "The Idol," starring The Weeknd and Lily-Rose Depp.

Heche has been honest about her demons. Her memoir "Call Me Crazy" talks frankly about the abuse she suffered from her father, as well as her continued struggles with mental health. Her recent car accident, in which she had to be rescued from her burning vehicle after she crashed it into a house, has left her future uncertain.

As of this writing, she remains in critical condition. Thankfully, no one inside of the home her vehicle slammed into was harmed.

(Editor's note: Anne Heche died Aug. 12 from her injuries. She was 53.)

Q: When are the Primetime Emmy Awards this year? What show has the most nominations? I hope there's a variety of winners. – I.P.

A: The 74th Annual Primetime Emmy Awards will air live on Monday, Sept. 12, from the Microsoft Theater in Los Angeles. It will be broadcasted on NBC beginning at 8 p.m. ET, while also streaming live on Peacock. "Succession," "Ted Lasso" and "The White Lotus" earned the most nominations. "Squid Game" has 14 nominations, the most ever for a foreign-language show. For a full list, visit the official site at www.Emmys.com.

A Bug-Out Bag for Pets

DEAR PAW'S corner: As the U.S. enters the most active period of the year for hurricanes, it's important to make sure we're prepared in case a storm strikes. My husband and I have prepared a backpack for each of us and a duffel bag with supplies for our dog and cat. We can grab these three bags on our way out the door if we have to evacuate to a safer area. Please share this tip with your readers: Preparing a bug-out bag for your pets is important no matter what part of the country you live in. – Carl in Fort Lauderdale, Florida

DEAR CARL: That's fantastic advice, and thank you for sharing it. Keeping a bug-out bag ready for yourself and your pets can spell the difference between comfort and disaster.

Find a comprehensive guide to preparing pets for disasters at ready.gov/pets. It offers additional recommendations like microchipping pets in case they get separated from you.

Prepare a bug-out bag for each pet. If you use a single large duffel like Carl and his husband, separate each pet's supplies with a piece of cardboard or in different packing cubes. Items should include:

– Food and treats. Include enough for three days.

– Sanitation supplies. A small bag of cat litter, waste pickup bags and pee pads.

– First aid kit and medications. Include a seven-day supply; accessing medicine may be much harder than finding more food for pets.

– Essential records. Make copies of records like vaccinations. Store them in a waterproof bag and include a photo of yourself and your pets.

– Extra collar, leash and ID tags.

– Toys and bedding. These provide comfort and familiarity for pets.

"The Last Movie Stars" (TV-MA) — In this limited docuseries executive produced by Martin Scorsese and directed by Ethan Hawke, viewers get a peek into Paul Newman and Joanne Woodward's legendary Hollywood marriage. The six-episode series starts with the couple's breakthrough into the acting industry with the Broadway play "Picnic" and stretches into the decades of performances that both Oscar-winning actors gave over their lifetimes (as well as their personal love story). Told uniquely by assigning actors to dramatize and read old interview transcripts, this is the perfect watch for film lovers or anyone looking to learn more about the history behind two of America's greatest actors. (HBO Max)

"Licorice Pizza" (R) — The ninth film from director Paul Thomas Anderson is out on streaming now! The peculiarly titled "Licorice Pizza" stars Alana Haim (most notably known from the band she's in with her sisters called Haim) and Cooper Hoffman (son of late actor Philip Seymour Hoffman) in both of their film debuts. Taking place in '70s Los Angeles, Haim plays a photographer's assistant in her 20s also named Alana — opposite Hoffman's character, Gary, a 15-year-old actor still in high school. Gary and Alana form a rare bond that Alana tries to fight off at first, but as their friendship grows, Alana must come to terms with her feelings for Gary and the extraordinary circumstances that keep bringing them together. (Prime Video)

"Day Shift" (R) — Movie watchers have had ample action movies to choose from lately. This week's major film release in the action genre is none other than the action-comedy "Day Shift," starring Jamie Foxx. Foxx plays Bud Jablonski, who's just another father out there trying to provide for his family. But, when his wife and daughter think about leaving their old lives behind and moving out of state, Bud realizes he needs to come up with some money — and quick. How does he do it, you may wonder? By hunting vampires! Operating under the guise of a pool-cleaning business, Bud and his fellow hunters are cornering vampires, "cutting necks and cashing checks." See it for yourself when "Day Shift" premieres on Aug. 12. (Netflix)

"The Addams Family 2" (PG) — The sequel to the 2019 animated film "The Addams Family," starring Oscar Isaac and Charlize Theron, is out on streaming Aug. 11, and all the creepy and kooky family members are back! Worried that his children are drifting apart from their family, Gomez has an idea to embark on a road trip across the U.S. so that the family can spend some time bonding together, but little does he know of the chaos that will surround his family as soon as they leave for this journey. Will it bring the Addams together or just drive them further apart? (Paramount+)

Length Of Hormone Treatment Depends On The Individual

DEAR DR. ROACH: I am a 60-year-old woman at the end of a five-year regimen of hormone therapy. My doctor has advised me to eventually stop the use of estrogen and progesterone by this summer, as she says women have an advanced risk of breast cancer at this age. Another friend a few years younger than me was told by her doctor that she could continue with hormone-replacement therapy until she is 70.

Which doctor is correct? I am experiencing constant hot flashes again and am able to snatch only little bits of sleep each night, along with all of the other issues that come with the loss of estrogen (inability to regulate temperature, hair falling out, flaccid skin, vaginal dryness, etc.). My other question is, am I able to use other herbal compounds, specifically saw palmetto and/or St. John's wort, without any risk of breast cancer? Or are these and other estrogen-mimicking compounds also a contributor to breast cancer? -- R.N.

ANSWER: There is no one-size-fits-all answer to the first question about how long to continue hormone treatment for symptoms of menopause. I disagree with any absolute rule, such as stopping at five years or waiting until 70, because any woman may place a different value on her well-being, and a woman's individual risk for breast cancer also needs to be considered. You haven't told me about any particular risk, but my answer would be very different for a woman with average risk compared with a woman with increased risk due to family history, for example.

About 40% of women will have symptomatic hot flashes until age 65, and continuing estrogen is reasonable in women who are willing to accept the increase in risk. The risk is not just breast cancer. Women taking combined estrogens and progestins have a small increase in the risk of heart disease, stroke and pulmonary embolism (blood clot to the lung), but a decreased risk of colon cancer and hip fracture. That all sounds scary, but the increase in risk of any of these is less than 0.5%. Overall, women on combined hormones were slightly LESS likely to die than those who were not. Many women choose to continue taking their hormones when their symptoms are significantly affecting their quality of life. I feel very strongly that it's the physician's job to advise so a woman can make the best decision for herself.

Saw palmetto is not commonly used for menopausal symptoms (it's used very frequently by men with prostate issues), and there is inconsistent evidence on its contribution for breast cancer. Similarly, there is no consensus on the risk of St. John's wort for breast cancer, and only limited evidence that it helps menopausal symptoms. St. John's wort can interact with many medicines, so it's wise to discuss its use with a pharmacist if you are taking other medication.

Many women ask about phytoestrogens (such as in soy protein or red clover) and other herbs with estrogenic activity (such as black cohosh). There is a theoretical risk, and although there are some studies suggesting they may be safe, many experts advise against these for women at high risk. That group would include women with a history of an estrogen-sensitive tumor.

Dr. Roach regrets that he is unable to answer individual questions, but will incorporate them in the column whenever possible. Readers may email questions to ToYourGoodHealth@med.cornell.edu.

Peach-Strawberry Pudding

I don't know which is best: strawberries or peaches — so I used them both in this ultra-easy (and delightful) dessert.

- 1 (4-serving) package sugar-free strawberry gelatin
- 1½ cups boiling water
- 3/4 cup plain fat-free yogurt
- 1 cup peeled and chopped fresh peaches
- 1 cup chopped fresh strawberries

In a medium bowl, combine dry gelatin and boiling water. Add yogurt. Mix well using a wire whisk. Fold in peaches and strawberries. Evenly pour mixture into 4 dessert dishes. Refrigerate until set, about 2 hours. Makes 4 servings.

• Each serving equals: 56 calories, 0g fat, 3g protein, 11g carb., 40mg sodium, 2g fiber; Diabetic Exchanges: 1 Fruit.

Answers

1. It had been written by R. Kelly. But two brothers in Belgium sued for plagiarism, saying it was taken from their song "If We Can Start All Over." The first Belgian court rejected the claim in 2003, but a second court in 2007 agreed it was plagiarism because the two melodies were virtually the same.
2. "Sailing," in 1980. He had another one the same year with "Never Be the Same."
3. Bob Seger, in 1975. The song was used in the soundtrack for "Mask," the 1985 Cher film.
4. George Harrison, in 1970.
5. "She Believes in Me," by Kenny Rogers in 1979. The song appeared on his "The Gambler" album and topped both the country and adult contemporary charts, making it a big crossover song for Rogers.

Opening lead — king of hearts.

A competent declarer always hopes for the best but prepares for the worst. That is the backbone of good play, and this case from a rubber-bridge game illustrates the principle.

South was in three notrump, and West started with the K-Q-J of hearts, declarer taking his ace on the third round. Without giving the matter much thought, South then led a low club to the ace. When East showed out, declarer could do no better than collect his eight high-card tricks and so finished down one.

While it is granted that South was unlucky to run into a 5-0 club division, the fact remains that had he applied the principle stated above, he would have made the contract.

South should have recognized that the ninth trick could come only from the club suit, and also that there was no advantage in initiating the suit by leading a low club to the ace or queen. There was a chance, however, that he might gain a trick by playing the king of clubs first. Thus, had South cashed the king initially, he would have had no trouble scoring four club tricks and making three notrump.

Declarer should start on the basis that the contract is cold if the clubs are divided 3-2. He should then turn his attention to how he might protect himself against a 5-0 or 4-1 split.

South should conclude that if East has any holding of four or five clubs, only three club tricks can be made no matter how the suit is attacked. South should then focus all his thoughts on what he might do if West has the club length.

Once declarer reaches this point, he should realize that by cashing the king first, he can overcome the J-10-x-x-x in West's hand, while nothing can be gained by the alternative low club lead.

It is true that in the great majority of hands it won't make any difference which club is led first, but from the standpoint of good technique, the king is clearly the right play.

Arts Affair In The Square Opens As Month-Long Exhibit

The 26th annual Arts Affair, now officially run by the Quincy Art Association, welcomed participating artists to a private reception and awards presentation at the QArts Gallery on Aug. 5th, before opening to the public on Saturday, Aug. 6th.

Judges Alice Donaldson, a resident of West Roxbury and David Wang of Quincy carefully deliberated their choices for awards; photography, mixed media, and sculpture by Alice Donaldson; oil & acrylic, watercolor, and drawing by David Wang. In total, 40 awards including Honorable Mention ribbons were bestowed.

Quincy resident Isabel Shamitz received Best of Show for her oil painting titled Reflections of History. Oil and Acrylic was the highest count of entries and therefore was eligible for first, second and third place awards; first place recipient was Kris Kreitman, second place was Maureen Vezina, and third place was Sue Hoy.

First place awards only were given in the remaining five categories, due to each being under the minimum of 25 entries. These included first place in Watercolor awarded to Marco Vizcarra, first place Drawing awarded to Troy Zarcone, first place in Mixed Media awarded to Kristen Cunningham, first place in Photography awarded to Troy Zarcone, and first place in Sculpture awarded to Fred Costello. One hundred forty works are on display, and most are for sale. For the complete listing, see the program book posted on the Quincy Art Association website.

On Sunday, Aug. 7 QAA members took to their easels despite the 90° temperature, for a live model session at the Hancock Adams Common amid the city's Multi Cultural Festival. The group of painters have been invited back to paint during upcoming city events.

Visit the QArts Gallery and check out the featured Artisan in the Window, Surfside Ceramics Studio of Quincy, and shop one-of-a-kind creations by fine art crafters and artisans.

Gallery Hours: Thursday and Friday 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturday and Sunday noon to 5 p.m. Free and open to the public.

The QArts Gallery is located at 1229 Hancock St., Quincy Center. The phone number is 617-302-3969; email: quincyartma@yahoo.com. For more information about the gallery, classes, events, and other news, visit www.quincy-artma.org
